University of Massachusetts

index 70

In the troubled academic year of 1969-70, few men stood out as an inspiration, as a guide, and as a friend to the often confused student population. However, here at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, one man espoused such values and has rightfully earned the respect and admiration of his fellow colleagues in the faculty as well as students of most every political classification. As Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences he oversaw the initiation of long awaited reforms within the curriculum of the College. As a professor of Botany he has recognized the need to make the courses which he has taught as relevant as possible to a contemporary society. As a friend of all of the students of the University he has often lobbied for student concerns with the administrative councils, and has always accepted every possible opportunity to meet and talk with students.

In recognition of his great service to the University we dedicate the 1970 Index to Dr. Seymour Shapiro, Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Academics

Good profs and bad profs, blue books and leaky Bic pens, desks loaded with grafitti, and noisy radiators came at you day after day, week after week. Soon comes finals and the end of the semester, cramming for that last exam, or suddenly comes STRIKE and a new grading policy. While academics was departments, courses, and profs, it was the year of a learning experience.

Participation

Almost everyone participated in the organized mayhem that ran through the year . . .

Free University City, Bill Cosby and Fat Albert, Garber's Gorillas, Sly and the Family Stone, N.I.T., the "fabulous" Supremes, and right down to the STRIKE.

Participation is a look at the events of the year.

Activities

A University has to be more than books and lectures. It is the activities and organizations which round out a students education. The organizations at the University ranged from the traditional and straight to the radical. This is the kind of University that we saw in 1970; a mixture of people and life styles, and this is what they will remember about the University.

Page: 186

The University is here, bricks, concrete, and glass, permanently interwoven into study halls and classrooms.

The Students are transients, each year some leave and new ones replace them. Each new student brings with him a special individuality, a personality.

The culmination of the students and the University is the University Community, a place for learning, both academic and social. This is the theme of the University, and the theme of this Index.

Student Living

Your father, mother, brother or sister might have lived there before you, but for the year it was yours to call home. Living in any of the University areas, a Greek house, or off campus made little difference to the University, yet this is where much of each person's University life was spent in the varied activities of the day. Living as a student was part of being a student.

Seniors

It took most four years, others longer, but all were members of the class of '70. Each of the seniors pictured in this section have become members of a brotherhood. Most of these people do not know one another, nor are they likely to, but they all carry with them some product of the University. The many hours of studying, drinking, cramming, partying, or whatever else they indulged in are over, but neither the people or the years should ever be forgotten.

UMass Hell Week: The Semi-Annual IBM War

Aside from the normal hassle of lines everywhere, students found many courses limited, closed or cancelled, often eliminating entire schedules in computerized disaster. Course change day became a bedlam reincarnated as people stood in line for hours hoping the person in front of them would drop the course they wanted. By the end of the day, obscure electives were in vogue, guts long filled since early morning. Do not fold, spindle or mutilate obviously does not apply to student nerves.

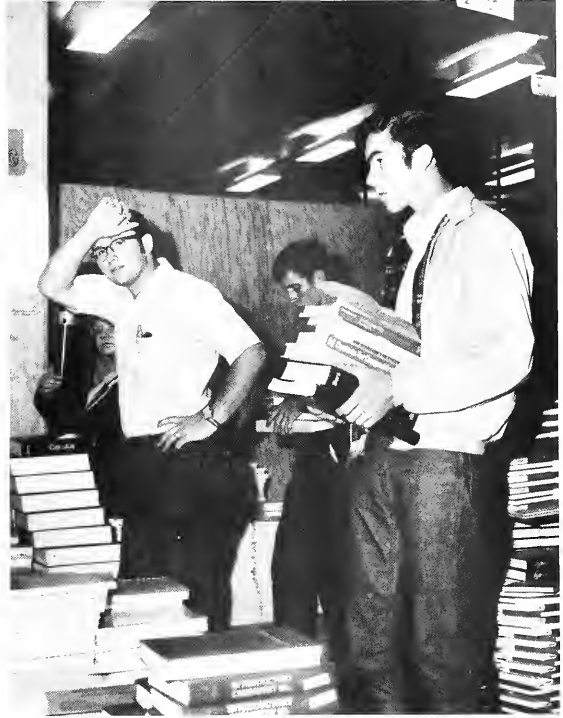

Sock it to us!

Lines, a word classified in every student's repertoire of useful information, clogged the aisles of the warehouse, while people wandered everywhere in search of a text that held more soon-to-be-classified useful information.

Dragging home the striped bags that ran in rain and snow over everything, turning your clothes maroon-icky, you wondered if anything in those pounds of expensive paper would really turn out worthwhile, or whether it was all down the drain and up for sale on bulletin boards next semester.

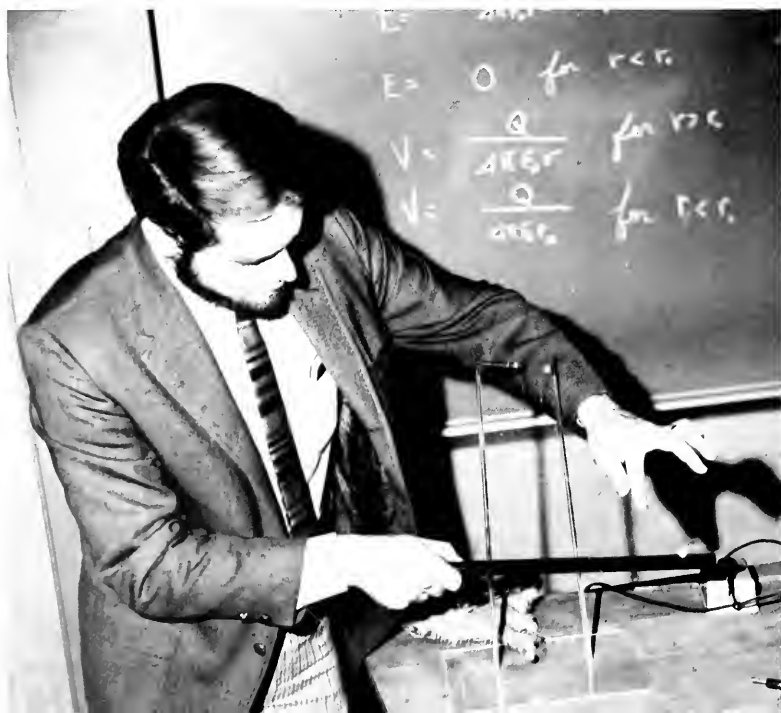

Convocation

"We have our administrative bureaucrats. And we have our faculty careerists. And we have our selfish uninvolved students." Somehow though, the involved students did not fair as well as Lederle's statement might have implied. Bruce Balboni, Senate President, spoke in favor of greater student voice in University policies. Whether his speech was listened to by officials is debatable.

As all finished and left, Gil Salk took the podium and began a discussion. About 150 students were involved enough to stay and discuss and to call silently "John W. Lederle, where are you?"

Distinguished Professors Award

"Greater than the tread of mighty armies is the idea whose time has arrived." Victor Hugo

Each year, the University student body and staff nominate those individuals whom they feel typify what a good professor should be. The ideals vary, but generally a man who knows and loves his field and can impart his interest and knowledge to his students is such a professor. Those accorded recognition this year were Dr. Richard Kofler, Physics, Dr. George W. Cannon, Chemistry, and Dr. Glenn Gordon, History. Those lucky enough to have courses with these men can fully appreciate and recognize their greatness in presenting ideas rather than rote facts, in stimulating rather than stunting freedom of thought.

To most students he was known as the "phantom". There were those who spent 4 years here and did not see him until graduation. But, he was here. His door was always open to those who wanted to see him.

He was the 15th president of the University and presided during the years of greatest growth. During his tenure some 70 buildings were built, and faculty salaries almost doubled. His main function was that of lobbyist, for it is in the nature of the state university that the legislature keep a close eye on the purse. As Speaker of the House Bartley once said, President Lederle was "a darn good lobbyist".

He will remain at the University as a professor as he steps down from his role as president. Future students will have the opportunity of more direct relationships with one of the men responsible for the dynamic institution that the University now is.

For two months Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes spent her time coping with the problems faced as Dean of Women. It was hard to find her alone in her office; she was usually talking to someone. She listened, and this is perhaps the best quality an administrator can have. Girls stopped in just to talk, and wound up staying for hours. Those who met her will never forget her, and those who knew her will always be her friend.

Artist Wins National Acclaim

Mr. Hendricks of the Art Department, with assistance from NASA which supplied photographs of the lunar surface, produced a remarkable series of moonscapes which were exhibited in the National Gallery in Washington D.C. along with a display of U.S. space achievements including a lunar rock sample. Mr. Hendricks also teaches painting in various media including oils, acrylics and water color.

The purpose of education in a University environment is to facilitate learning. With this thought in mind, administrators and faculty have attempted over this past year to bring students closer to this goal, by revamping the curriculum and basic core requirements in all schools. Many University requirements have been dropped, while requirements in other areas offer multiple options for fulfillment and creditation. Interesting and enjoyable courses such as Human Sexuality have been implemented within the curriculum in an attempt to offer students broader and more flexible options in selecting electives.

Curriculum Reforms

Now, for many, scenes of lab sciences and physical education are obsolete, a nightmare of years past, countless eight o'clocks spent kicking a soccer ball or watching planeria. But some, boldened by lesser requirements and pass-fail options, branched out and explored areas foreign to them. They learned, unpressured and interested, and became fuller individuals. By these curriculum reforms, another step was taken toward the true goal of the University.

MOST ROTC

Passed by the slim margin of 37-36, ROTC, a legal course at the University since the Morrill Act of 1862, lost most academic credit this past fall. In the wake of much controversial debate, credit was dropped on the grounds that non-academic subject areas should not be allowed academic creditation. The motion further established that courses concentrating on military strategy and drills would be reduced to an absolute minimum.

And some people didn't like this at all . . .

Do Professors Care?

In times of publish-or-perish and large lectures, it seems easier than ever for professors to take a purely academic and passive role in the University. There are many who do just that, but others are out and involved, with the students or with political and sociological movements. These people are not always noticed; their involvement is buried in the popular jargon of ivory tower existence for university professors. Some of them are pictured here, caught in their work of being true developers of a university community.

Student Teaching

The block, the culmination of every senior education major's four years at UMass, serves as the stepping stone from which students over a span of eight or sixteen weeks become teachers. It is a time when an individual's knowledge and talents transcend the lecture hall and textbook to be practiced in the classroom. The challenge is oftentimes a difficult one, but the rewards are endless and success manifests itself in the smiles of a classroom full of students.

Hey, roommate! You'll never guess what happened to me today! The computer talked back to me! It didn't reveal any great secrets but I finally got it to work. And my human sexuality class was so good last night. We're establishing a really great rapport in the group and I'm learning a lot about myself and people in general. This would have been the best day except I had Zoo 200 lab and we had to trek out in the marsh and scoop up bugs and twigs. That was a bummer, but I learned something there too: how much I hate Zoo 200. Today was so fantastic it almost made up for the weeks of grind before it. Why can't learning always be this exciting?

April 10 and 11

To many people, cancelling Friday classes was just an excuse to pack up and leave for a long weekend. Those who stayed found discussions concerning questions about the University; people talked and listened a lot. Whether anything else was accomplished, the act of discussing problems with faculty and fellow students cleared the air and was the start of foundations for change.

The classes were endless,
It seemed,
Sometimes they were fun
But more often you slept through them,

Or took a few token notes . . .

To be flipped through in spare moments,
While your mind was on
The night before at Mike's,
Or tonight at the Pub,
Or a weekend away,
The kid who sat next to you in Zool lecture,
Any of a thousand things . . .
Anything . . .
Anything but the ghostly words
On the page in front of you.

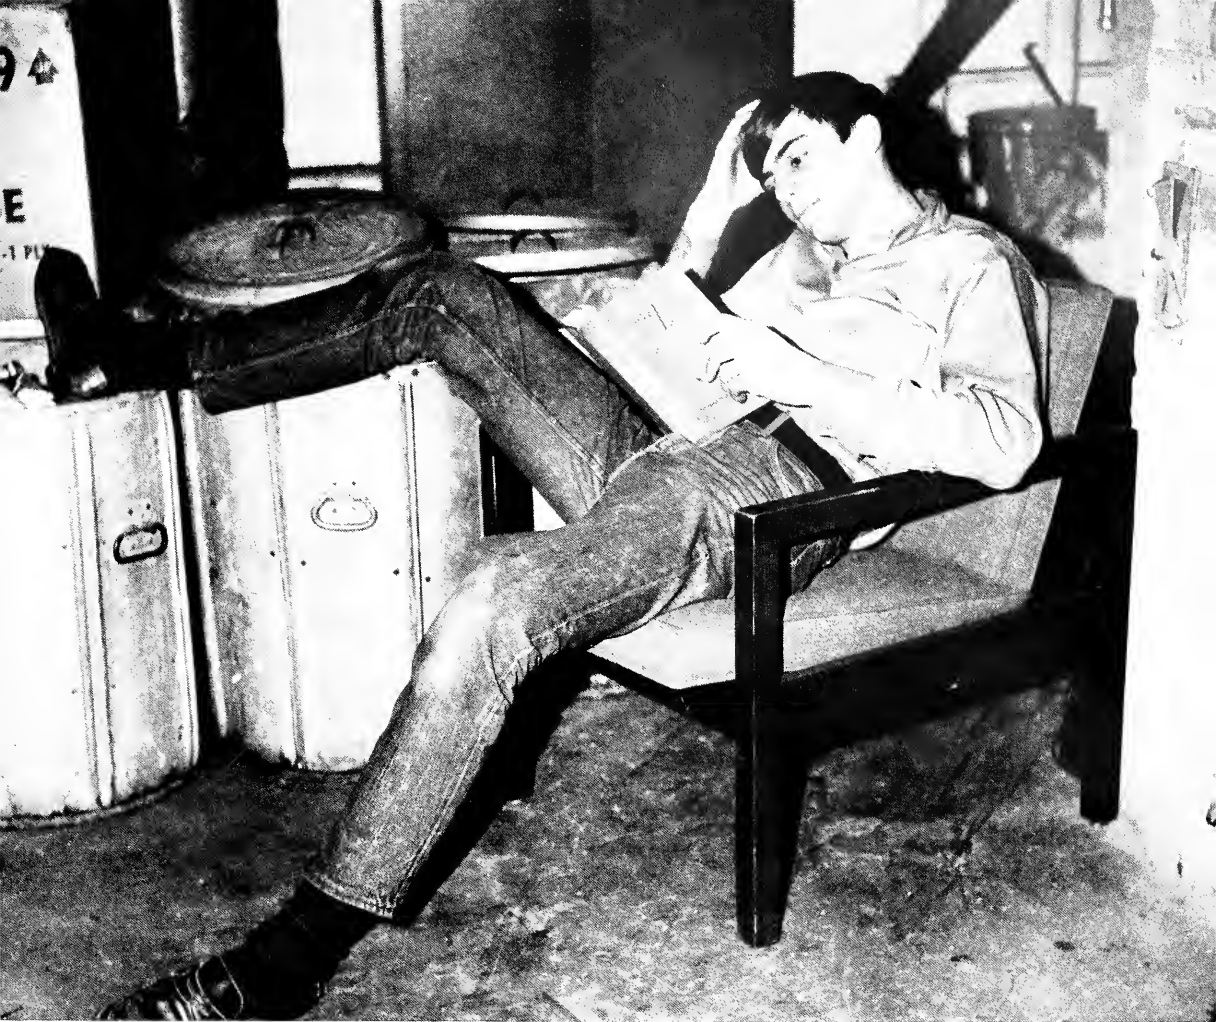

There was never enough time
For the tedious pastime of playing student, Especially
In the spring,
When the work began to catch up with you.

As others whiled time away in conversation,
You studied in the cloudy buzz of voices,
Getting the chapter read,
The problems done
By 1:25 . . .
Breathing relief,
Then getting a new assignment,
Or remembering a neglected course,
And beginning again
To trudge the weary cycle . . .

The urgency of things undone intensified at night,
When you searched for silence
As your corridor partied
And stereo sounds echoed through the night,
Until you tired of seeing books and papers
So you joined in the noise or spent time staring out at the lights Wondering where it all was leading to
And where it all began . . .

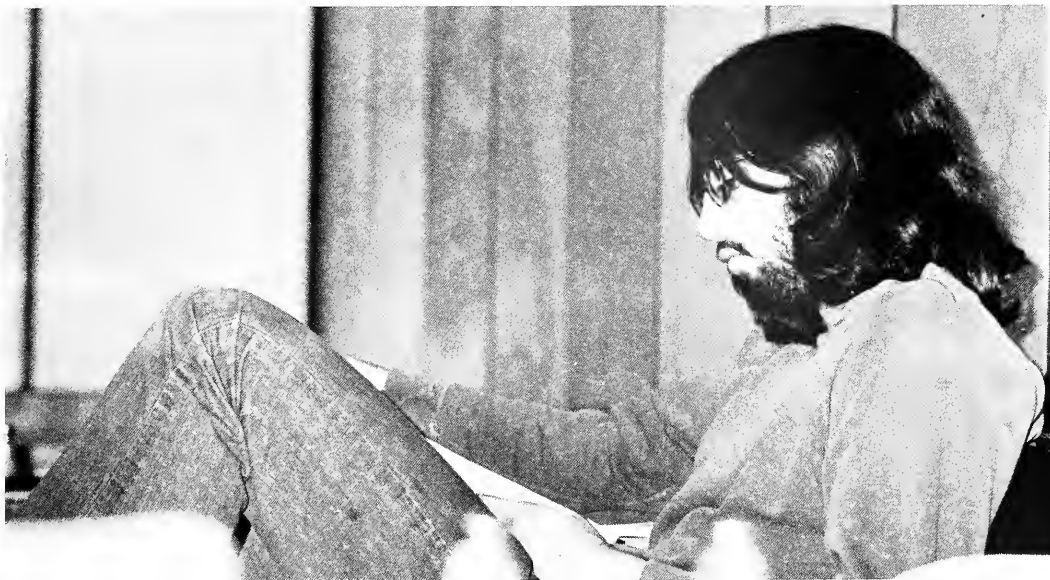

It started so long ago —
 Remember when books were beautiful
 And learning was exciting
 You were soaking it all in
 But you couldn't absorb it fast enough
 Every day was challenge and adventure
 Each day brought more wonder and awe
 Flowers bloomed
 And the world was sunshine . . .

And now . . .
Tears . . .
Because it isn't that way anymore.
You push on until exhaustion,
And cry because there aren't enough hours
To attend to a student's duties
And to be yourself, a person.

Your mind is on
A yo-yo string
And each time
You come
Close to truth
You hurtle away
Again
Fighting the nausea
Of the momentum
The ups and downs
Of being a student
All the time praying
That the string
Doesn't break . . .

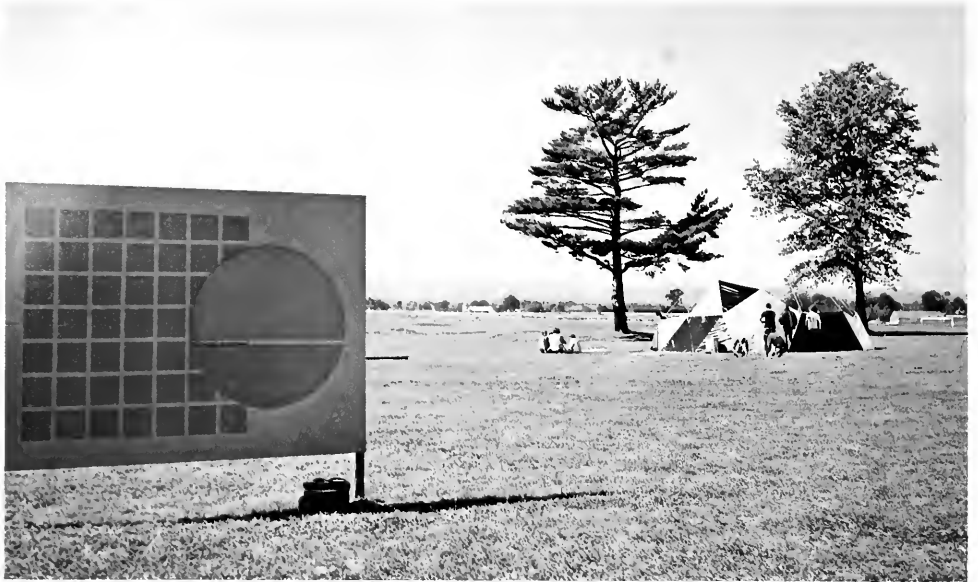

It's
an endless cycle
of keeping yourself
together for four years

And
then ...?

Amid the mechanized functions of the University there arose on the fields behind Southwest and in the minds of many students a new concept of education. People not numbers, learning not memorizing, thought not feedback, became the driving forces behind . . .

OCTOBER 15, 1969

In the fading twilight of a September afternoon, Orpheus and the Enchanted Forest brought harmony and hard-driving rock to make us joyful. The glitter of the Supremes along with the soul sounds of Jimmy Castor closed Senior Weekend on a golden note.

Soccer

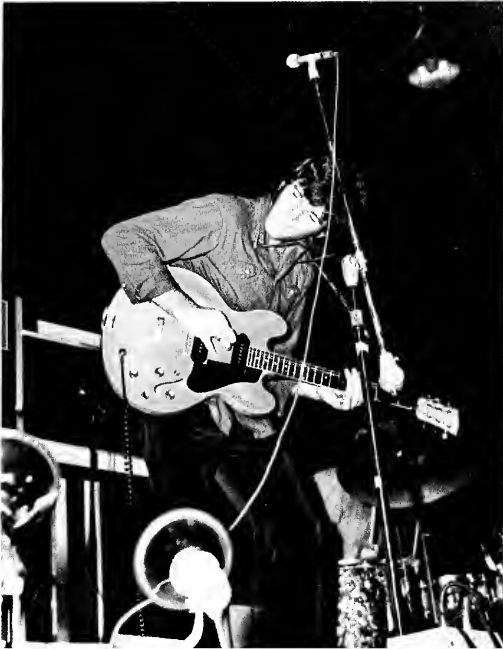

The Redmen booters lost only heartbreakers in posting a 6 win 4 loss 1969 record. Their defense was spectacular allowing only 17 goals in their 10 contests. It was John Mercury and Tom Malone that sparked that fabulous UMass defense while co-captains Rich Matuszcak and Dick Meyer along with All Yankee Conference forwards Arelindo Alves and Augie Calheno provided the backbone. The Redmen soccer team's leading scorers, Duane Brown and Larry DeFelice, provided the punch with 19 of the team's 23 total season goals. The victories came over B.C. (3-0), UConn (2-1), Tufts (5-4), URI (2-1), Coast Guard (6-2), and UNH (1-0). Losses were at the hands of YanCon champ Vermont (2-3), Worcester Tech (1-2), Trinity (0-2), and Maine (1-2).

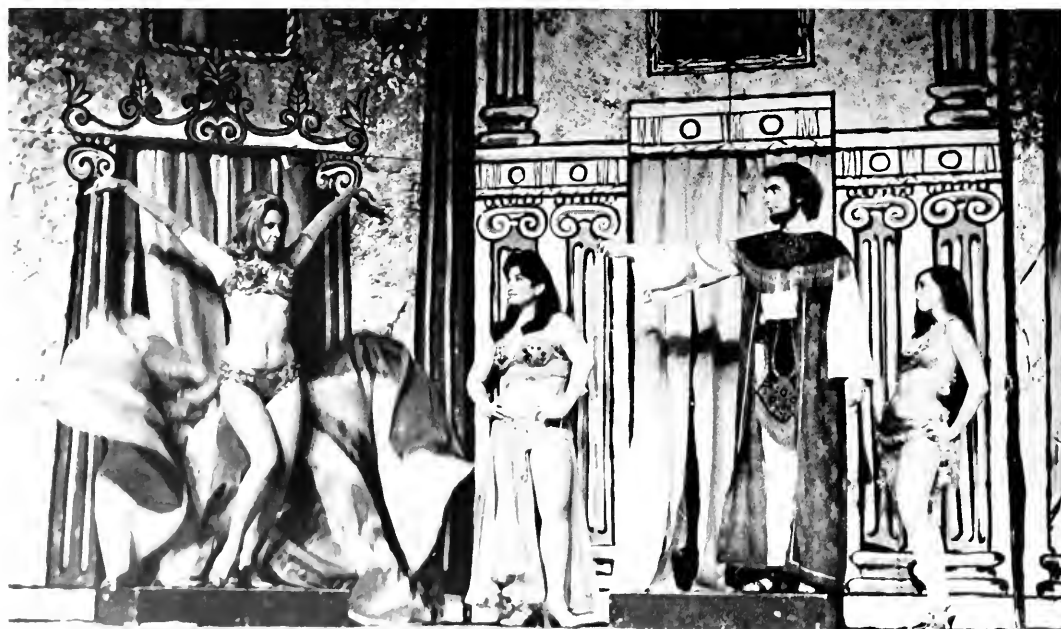

Homecoming

Homecoming Weekend gave way to a variety of moods. We laughed at the comedy, "A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum", while Tim Harden's "Simple Song of Freedom" moved us. The soulful voice of Vivian Reed set the stage for the explosion of Sly and the Family Stone.

... A Tale of Two Quarterbacks

The 100th anniversary of college football brought a new UMass grid innovation from Head Coach Vic Fusia . . . two starting quarterbacks. Signal callers Tim Adams and Ken Hughes alternated at the starting spot throughout the season, and with solid protection from the offensive line, completed nearly 50% of their aerals. They were the impetus for a big comeback season.

The Redmen opened the season at Maine and scalped the Black Bears 49-7. Returning home the next week, the UMass eleven were ambushed by Buffalo 16-6 and a week later Delaware did much the same to the Redmen downing them 33-21. Astro-turfed Boston University was the scene for the UMass return to the war-path as senior Craig Lovell provided heroics scoring the winning TD with only 40 seconds left in the game. The 14-9 defeat for the Terriers was their only loss of the entire season.

Homecoming '69 brought the gridmen home to rack up their second Yankee Conference win, a 21-9 tally over URI. When the Redmen eleven continued on the victory trail by running over UConn 28-7 on their home turf, the Yan Con Bean Pot was in sight. A 48-7 romp over Vermont and another by the same score over UNH brought UMass an undefeated conference slate and the undisputed conference championship. When the final Saturday — Boston College Saturday — rolled around, the Redmen came close but the eagles soared 35-30. The season closed and the record book with it reading 6 wins — 3 losses and 5-0 in the Yankee Conference.

It was the best of times . . .

. . . for an explosive offense

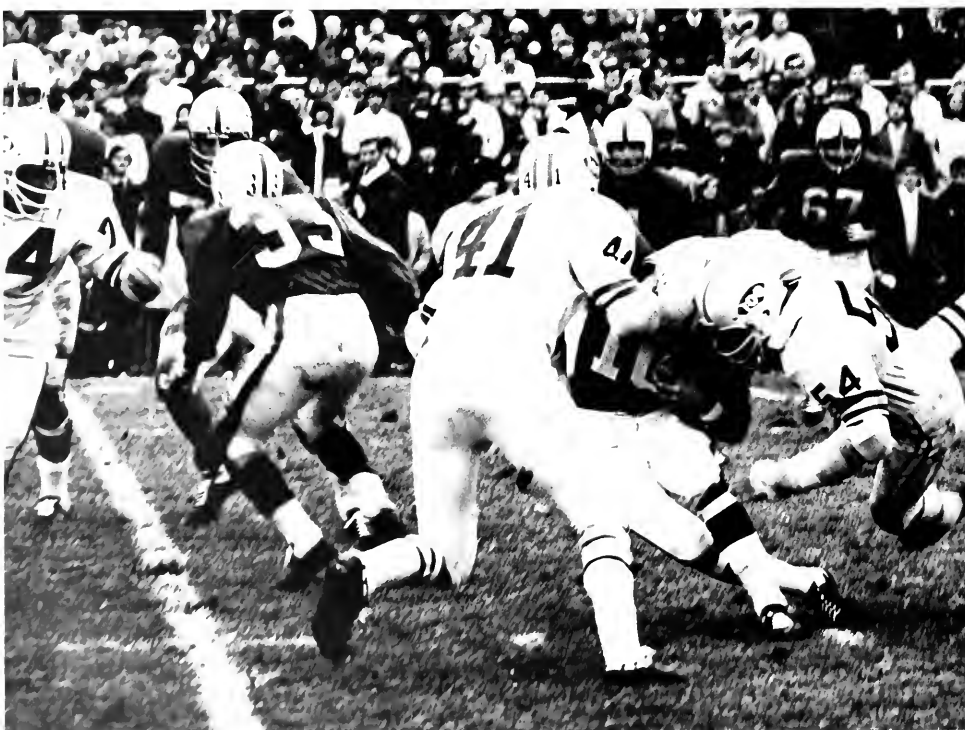

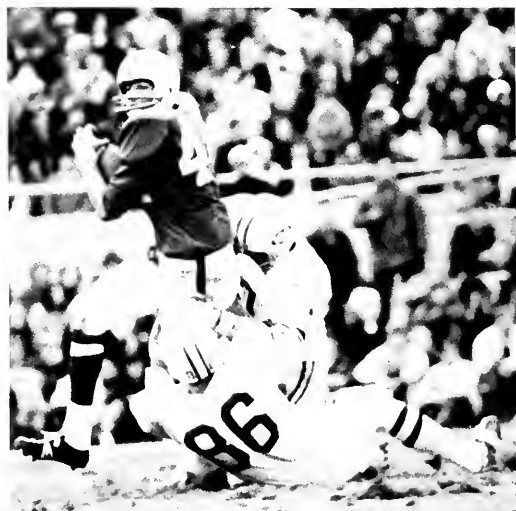

The 1969 Redmen offense broke four school records including a total 265 points which tied the New England University mark. UMass was led by a well balanced ground attack thanks to the strong running of Pat Scavone, Jerry Grasso, Ed Sarno, Dick Cummings and Craig Lovell.

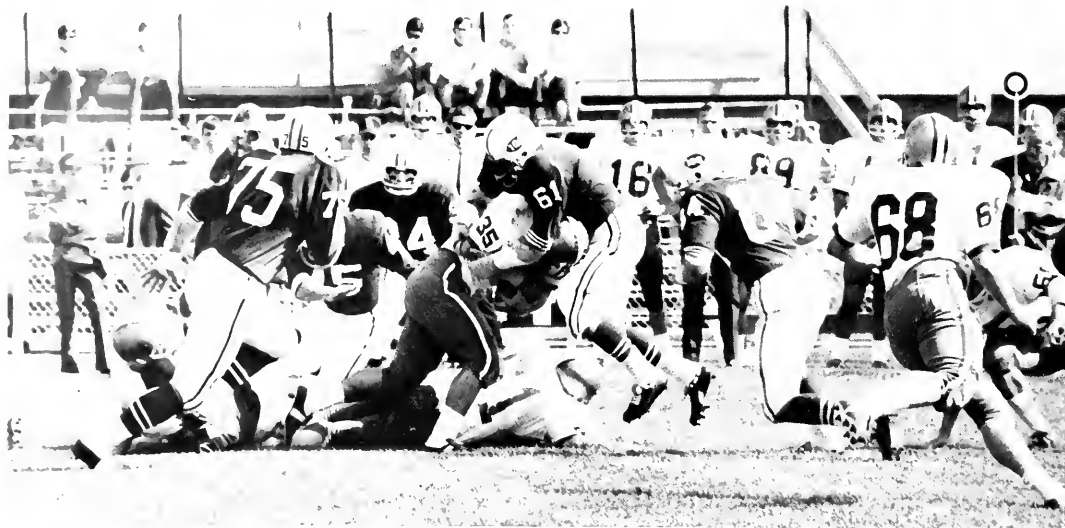

The air attack certainly proved to be a big asset to the Redmen as Tim Adams and Ken Hughes had two fine ends in Nick McGarry and John Hulecki. Grasso and Scavone played important roles as pass receivers.

The exciting all-around play of Steve Parnell high-lighted the outstanding offensive showing of the 1969 Redmen.

It was the Season of Light . . .

It was the Autumn of Hope . . .

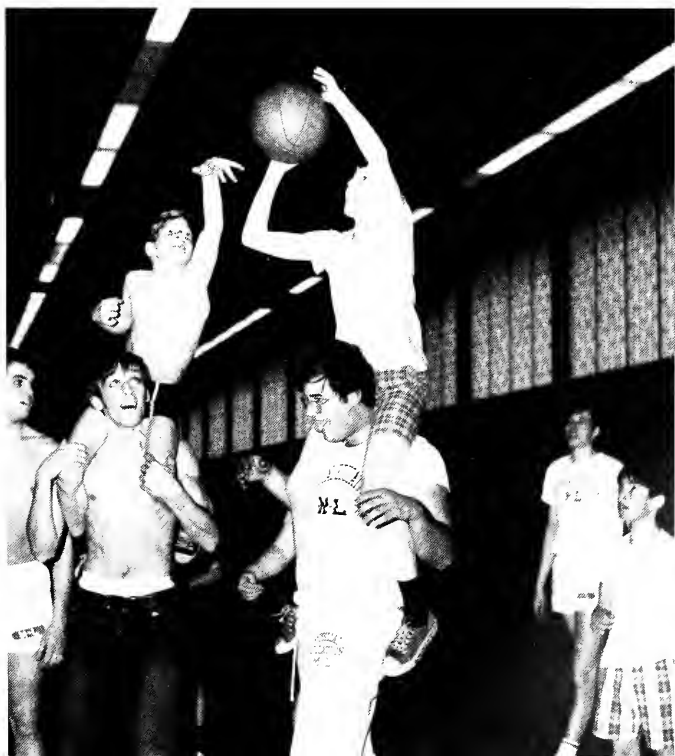

... for a Winning Season

The 1969 Redmen put it all together. The defense was superb, crushing the opposition at will. The offense was fantastic, leaving trails of fallen defenders in its path. But it was the effort of the individual that brought UMass back from the disaster of '68 to the autumn of '69... the autumn of hope for Redmen fans and a look to the future.

Greeks

Support those in need . . .

Temporarily casting aside the pressures and headaches of books and exams which surround every student, the Greeks always found relief and enjoyment in the simple pleasures of being together. To them, the interaction among themselves proved to be a major part of their learning experience and provided the link with which they were able to communicate with the University and the community.

Cross Country

The 1969-1970 Cross Country team, led by captains Ron Wayne and Leo Duarte started slowly but soon molded into a highly regarded team. Finishing fourth in the New England Championship and second in the Yankee Conference behind highly favored UConn, they were a New England Power. Looking forward to next year, captains Ron Wayne and Larry Paulson should have a fine team with the aid of the New England Champion Freshman team. With the loss of only two seniors, Dave Evans and Bill Donaldson, Coach Ken O'Brien can set his sights on a varsity championship team.

Field Hockey

With less than half of last year's varsity returning, it was a rebuilding year. Six of the eleven starters were freshmen — senior co-captain Debbie Harrison was the year's high scorer with 6 goals while Beth Connors and Dee Dee Dunsford had 5 goals each, but, the inexperienced eleven posted only a 4-5-1 season with wins over Mt. Holyoke (twice), Colby Jr., and Bridgeport. Losses came in their outings with Springfield (twice), Southern Connecticut, Skidmore and New Hampshire. The lone tie came in a rematch against New Hampshire.

Despite the loss of co-captains Harrison and Ellen Buffington, much of the team will remain intact and prospects for the coming season shine bright for the UMass Squaws.

Draft Birth Date List

The following is the list of birth dates, in order highest draft priority to lowest draft priority. The Associated Press has estimated that men whose birthdays fall in the top 100 or so slots stand an almost certain chance of being drafted. Middle number birth dates, ranging from 100-250, stand a 50-50 chance of being drafted depending on local boards. The men with lower priority numbers, from 250-366, the Associated Press predicts, will probably not be drafted.

Early in December the famed national draft lottery was held in Washington D.C. Everyone on campus was affected. Draft eligible men listened intently for their number to be called, while girls all over campus waited in tense groups for the birthdays of their boyfriends, husbands and brothers to be pulled from the fishbowl. Most denounced the lottery and some tried to get petitions signed to repeal the draft completely.

Those Were The Days

Winter Carnival recreated the days that were . . . the Red Garter Room . . .
dark, noisy, alive with spirit and song.

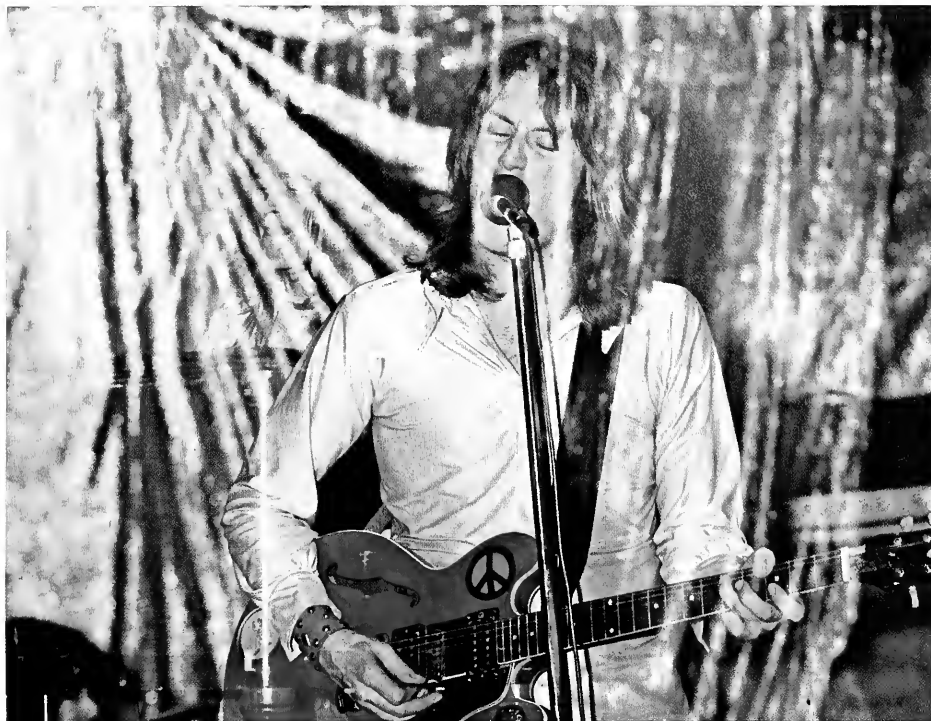

One of the many activities held during Winter Carni week was a fashion show which featured the high fashion look of the good old days. Long billowing skirts and bathing suits complete with knickers were just some of the highlights of the show. It was all very informative but the mini is much more interesting.

"Ten Years After", with Alvin Lee, has gone but their music, comprised of hard rock, lives on. Another memory of Winter Carni, they won the hearts of everyone that Sunday afternoon in February.

Those who didn't know Alvin Lee before concert time, won't soon forget him. It was evident from the beginning with "Little Miss Schoolgirl" to their bang-up finish with the rather appropriate title, "Going Home", why they were so well received from Newport to the Cage.

"The Cos" returned. And when he stepped onto the stage everyone knew it. The audience roared with laughter. The Bill Cosby Show was a welcome Winter Carnival relief from the dreariness of the books and the weather.

Side-splitting comedy from the characters of Old Weird Harold and Crying Charlie was the order of the evening. The funnyman's partner for the night was songstress Carmen McCrae, who provided the musical tones to balance the Cos.

Danny Hutton, Chuck Negron, and Cory Wells shocked this campus with possibly the best set of Winter Carni Sunday concerts ever held. The "Three Dog Night" drew repeated standing ovations with their dynamite vocal, instrumental, and choreographic abilities. The whole group was together, so together that even the organ player and drummer brought standing ovations from a stomping, clapping, standing room only crowd.

As the 1969-70 Redmen Basketball season opened, UMass fans wondered whether the hoop veterans along with a group of talented sophomores could fill the vacancies left by last year's big men Joe DiScarcina and Pete Gayeska. The Redmen got off to a shaky start, losing important conference games to URI and UConn and then losing another tough one to AIC. However, optimism prevailed as ardent Redmen fans hoped that it wouldn't be long until the team settled down to winning ways.

Number 32 . . . Julius Erving

... Super Soph

Few sophomores set records, let alone in their first game. But Julius Erving hauled down 28 rebounds, a record, against a pre-season New England favorite, Providence College. His varsity debut was a preview of things to come.

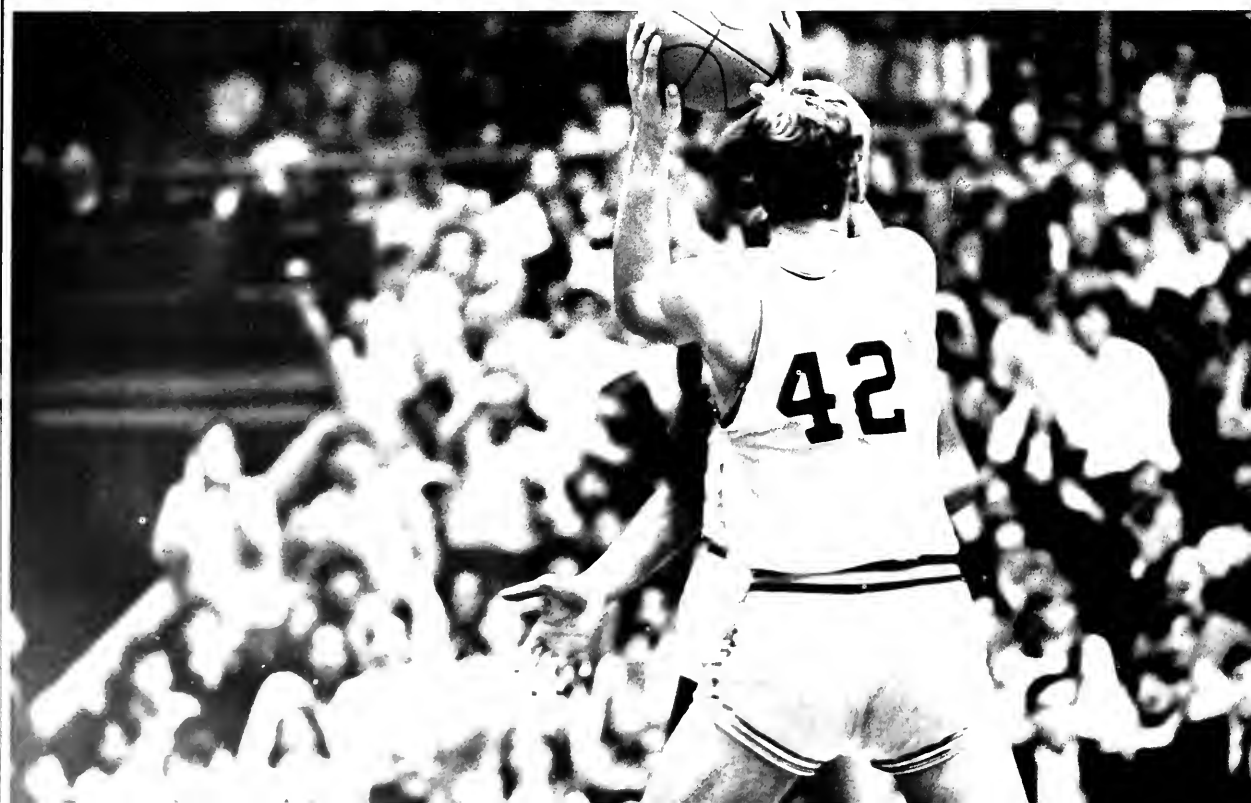

At the Gem City Bowl, Julius walked away with the MVP award as he led the Redmen to an upset win over highly regarded Gannon College. Despite a losing effort against Penn, Erving impressed the Palestra so much that he was named to their All-Opponent team.

Perhaps his greatest performance was against Holy Cross when he pulled in 25 rebounds, scored 24 points, made seven assists and committed only one foul. As a Worcester writer reported, "... he did not sell hot dogs or collect tickets, but he is only a sophomore, wait till next year."

Among Erving's personal achievements are: most points in one season, highest scoring average in one season, most free throws in one season, and most rebounds in one season. The latter was good enough to rank the soph ace second in the nation in rebounding behind 7'2" Artis Gilmore of Jacksonville.

Other honors include All Yankee Conference, All New England, ECAC sophomore of the year, Look Magazine All American and UPI honorable mention All American.

As UMass students went home for the December holidays, the Redmen boned up on the Gem City Tournament, clobbering Catholic U., 70-51 and brushing off Gannon, 72-63 for the title. The Redmen showed signs of awakening against nationally ranked Penn but bowed in the final minutes, 75-65. In a close game, Fordham nipped the Redmen, 62-61. The last of the six away games, the Redmen came from behind to beat Iona, 86-82.

Returning to the Cage against Boston University, the Redmen fielded what would be the starting five for the duration-Samuelson, Gallagher, Erving, Betancourt and Ellerbrook. They shelled the Terriers 103-68. Northeastern visited next but wasn't welcomed, 90-62. UMass was starting to get warm but, on a damp, cold and heartless night at Chestnut Hill, the Redmen were pushed back by BC, 83-76. Rider then fell, 82-67 and the Redmen took Vermont, 93-59.

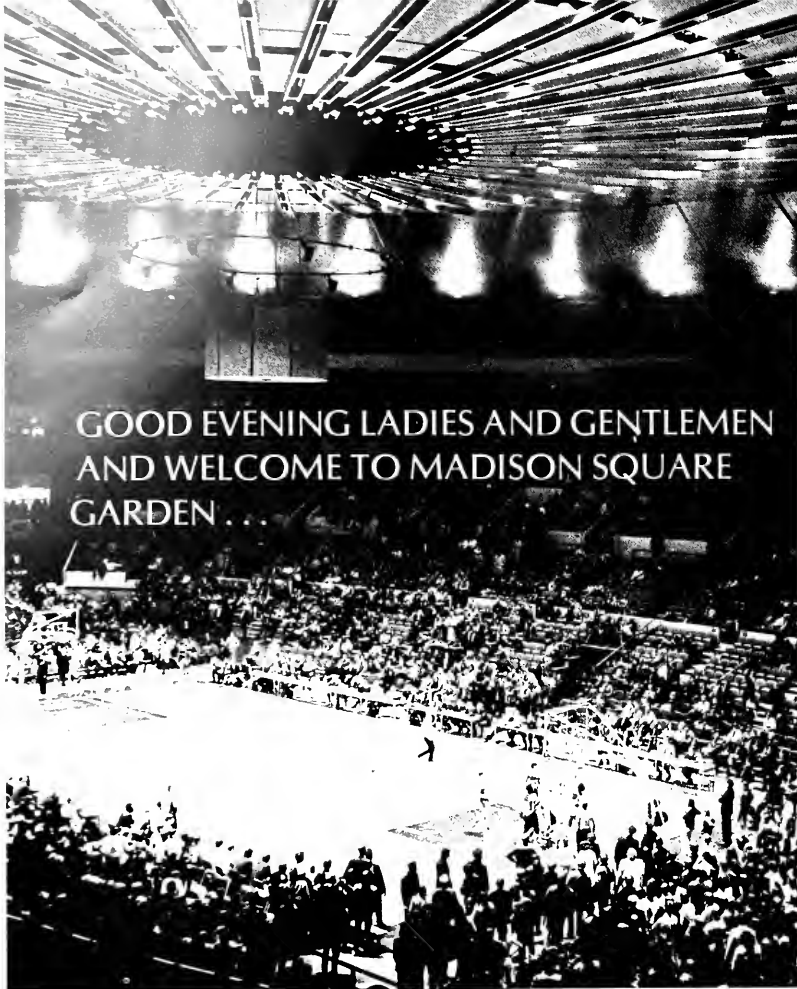

The Redmen then faced the challenge of Holy Cross, UConn and URI all in a row, the former was number one in New England, the latter two were number one in the Conference. UMass put its 10-6 record on the line and took all three frays, HC by 83-66, UConn by 71-65 and URI by 83-78. With this major accomplishment, the Redmen moved into a tie for first place in the Conference and inched closer to the number one spot in New England.

The Redmen finished up the season five-for-five defeating, in succession, Springfield 82-76, Maine, 84-66, St. Anselm's, 94-63, Maine again, 103-71 and New Hampshire, 92-75. UMass' final record for regular season play was 18-6, which gave it a share of the Yankee Conference crown, earned it the number one rank in New England, and represented the most wins ever achieved by a Redmen hoop unit.

Finally, after a long, agonizing wait, the word came . . . UMass was accepted to the NIT.

When the Redmen took the court for their warm-ups, 4000 screaming UMass supporters voiced their approval.

Cobb and Erving jumped center and the season's most thrilling game was underway.

The Warriors jumped off to a quick lead, hoping to pull away early, but the Redmen came back and tied the score 27-27 at the half.

The second half saw more of a see-saw battle and matched scoring. But in the final minutes of play, Marquette edged into the lead and held it. The final score: Marquette 62 UMass 55.

The season was over. The Redmen had compiled their finest record ever. They had gone to the NIT and had shown the basketball world that UMass was and would be a power to be reckoned with.

"Hey, hey, we won't pay"

Chanting protests against the proposed rent hike, approximately 1500 students marched to Whitmore Administration Building where Dean William Field was handed letters which displayed student dissatisfaction with the room rent increase. The march was the highpoint of a day of demonstrations which included rallies in the residential areas of campus and a teach-in at the union.

TIPPO NAMED CHANCELLOR OVER OLKEN'S OBJECTION

Trustees Appoint Tippo Over Senate Protest

Open Letter from Trustees

The Board of Trustees today appointed Oswald Tippo as Chancellor of the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts. In his new capacity, which is effective immediately, Dr. Tippo will be responsible for all operations on the Amherst campus. Dr. Tippo is an alumnus of the University, which also granted him an honorary Doctor of Science of 1954. Upon completing his undergraduate work, he went to Harvard, where he took his doctorate in Biology. Subsequently, he went to the University of Illinois where, starting as Instructor in Botany, he ultimately became chairman of his department and then Dean of the Graduate School. From Illinois he went to Yale, where he was chairman of the Department of Botany, to the University of Colorado as Provost, and to New York University as Executive Dean of Arts and Sciences. He then returned to his alma mater as Provost in 1964.

Our decision to appoint Dr. Tippo was based largely upon three factors. The first was the University's experience with him as Provost. During the six years he has filled this office, students, faculty members, and the Board of Trustees have been in close and frequent contact with him and have developed the highest regard for his abilities, dedication and achievements. His leadership and untiring efforts as Provost have resulted in a distinguished faculty, stronger and more varied academic programs, a much improved library, greater educational opportunity for minority groups, and a start on curricular reform and innovation. He has consistently advocated that students exercise broader responsibility for regulating their own lives.

The second factor is related to the first. While everyone associated with the University justifiably may be proud of the progress achieved under the President and Provost, we are also aware that the process of improving and adapting the University's educational program to new human and social needs is just beginning. It seems essential to the Board that the momentum of progress at Amherst be maintained during the University's system-wide reorganization and search for a new President. In our view, this appointment is essential to provide strong, coordinating leadership and to avoid intensification of problems which critics of the University believe need immediate solution.

Last, the Board is impressed by the broad respect, support, and confidence in Dr. Tippo's leadership on the Amherst campus. Throughout his tenure as Provost there have been repeated demonstrations of this confidence by students and faculty. Our formal consultations with representatives of the faculty and of the student bodies on the appointment of Dr. Tippo as Chancellor have shown that he commands wide-spread respect and support among all parties. Indeed, even those who would have preferred that the Board proceed differently on this appointment have made it plain that are motivated solely by convictions on how university officials should be selected. We acknowledge and respect these convictions, but have elected to act on the appointment at this time in the belief that further delay would be contrary to the interests of the University.

There is much still to be done to make the Amherst campus a distinguished academic center and a pleasant, exciting place to live and study. To achieve this will require a united search for solutions and the whole-hearted cooperation and participation of the entire University Community.

JOSEPH P. HEALEY

Mr. Healey speculated that "If we took up the question of Dr. Tippo instead of the procedural question, he would be overwhelmingly applauded by the student body at large. We did not see any individual or organized student opposition to Dr. Tippo."

A press release issued by Senate President Olken stated in part: "This appointment has been made over the objections of the undergraduate Student Senate, which has on three separate occasions, as early as late last October, endorsed the principle of student-faculty search committee to assess the qualifications of Dr. Tippo with those of other candidates. On two occasions the Senate has requested that the Board name the Provost Acting-Chancellor pending the results of such a search."

"Today's action by the Board... seriously contravenes the fundamental principles of community. To appoint the chief administrative officer of a campus without meaningful prior consultation with the student body, and in opposition to the reiterated will of the student legislature is unwise."

Tippo has served as University Provost since 1964, after four years as Provost and executive dean of arts and sciences at the University of Colorado.

He graduated from UMass in 1932 and received an M.A. and a Ph.D. in Botany at Harvard University.

Hockey

1969-70 was the season that UMass hockey finally arrived on campus. Coach Jack Caniff's sextet skated, hit and scored the best in the school's history. Big wins over Colby 4-3, Hamilton 8-7, Merrimac 4-3 and Vermont 2-1 in sudden death were highlights of a year with few dull moments. Vermont went on to win the Division II Championships.

To outsiders, these victories appeared to be upsets but to those who knew the sport at UMass, the opposite was true. This was a good but green sophomore laden squad that still had its best days ahead of it. As it was, the Redmen barely missed the ECAC playoffs by the slim margin of one game.

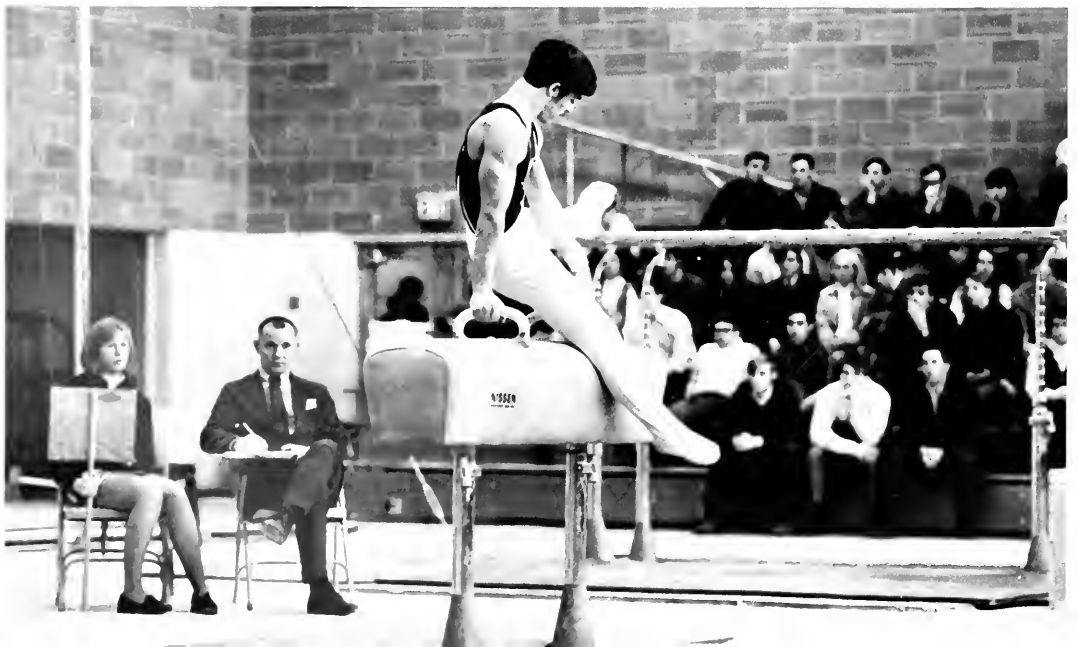

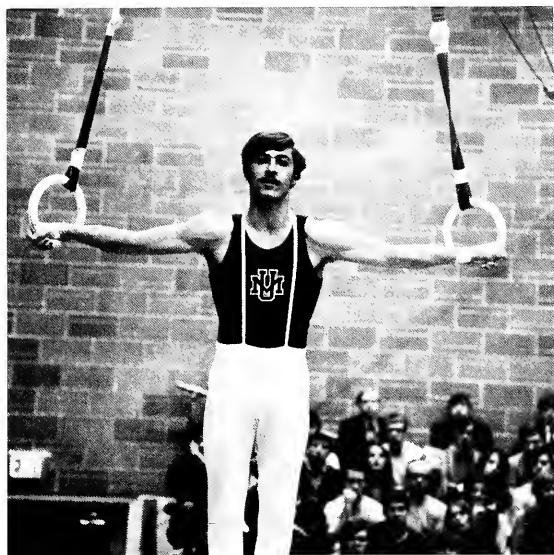

P.J. Flaherty, the goalie, was at times an inspiration with his dazzling play, and replacement Bruce Crawford, in the nets for three shutouts, was outstanding. Doug Powling and Brian Sullivan anchored a defense which considered every goal allowed an insult. Jack Edwards was the leading scorer and ably centered John Hartnett. Dennis Grabowski led wings Bill McMann and Mike Waldron while Canadian Eric Scrafield showed them all how it was done. The season, which they helped to build, was a good one but the future is brighter. The winning season, just a dream in November was a reality in March.

Gymnastics

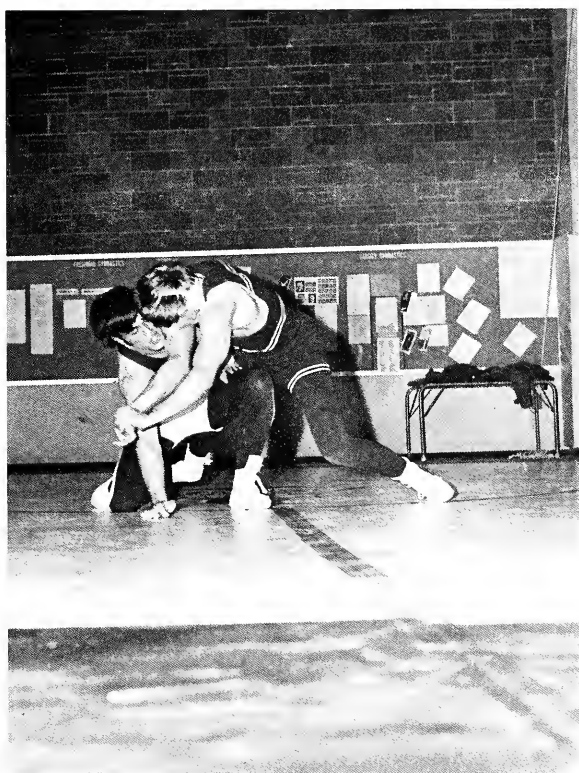

This season the team recorded its highest score in U. of Mass history, and had medalists in every event at the New Englands. Many fine and difficult routines were performed as the team placed second in the New Englands and third in the Easterns.

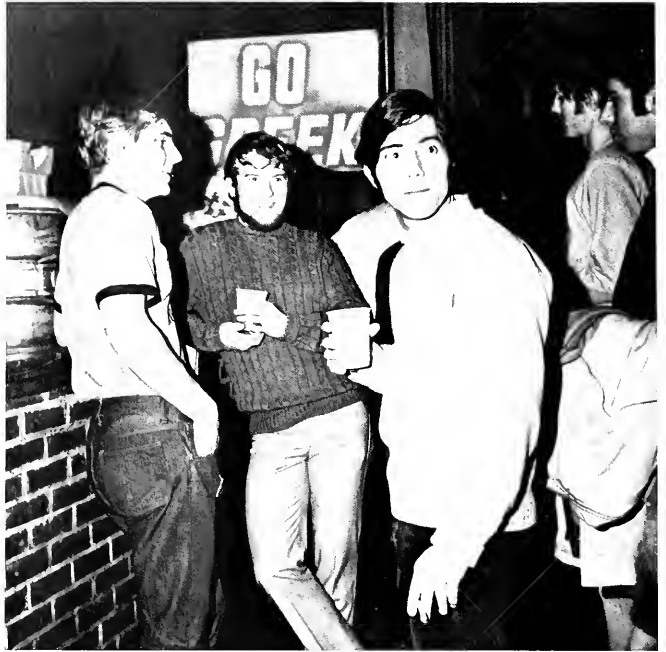

Wrestling

Captain George Zguris led the UMass matmen to a 16-4 record for the season and a strong second position in the 30 team membership New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Tournament. Paced by Captain Zguris, Sheldon Goldberg, and Tom Young, who finished first in the NEIWA 134 and 167 lb. classes, the grapplers completed the most successful season in UMass wrestling history.

Swimming

It was another season of disappointment and frustration for the UMass Mermen.

With only 6 returning veterans, the team made a strong showing at the New England Championships, placing 13th out of 22 schools. The seasons dual meet record was less impressive, beating only Holy Cross for a 1-8 record. Individual honors went to Ed Jazab and Mark Miller for placing in the New Englands and to Captain Al Northup and Coach Joe Rogers for their contributions to the team.

Ski Team

For only the second time in University history the ski team captured top honors in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference. In doing so, the skiers far surpassed their conference winning record of two years ago and became the strongest team in University skiing history.

The one senior on the squad, co-captain Jim Garstang, led the team by placing first in five races and in the top six in the other four contests. Voted outstanding conference skier by the coaches and captains of the league, Garstang placed second in the final overall conference standings.

Junior co-captain Ted Martin capped an outstanding season finishing second on the team and seventh in the league.

With excellent performances by the other members of the squad, the 1969-70 season has begun what might be a long conference leadership by the Redmen skiers.

Planned to be an annual event, the first Black Talent Show at UMass was presented by the Black Affairs Council. Groups from as far as New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, and Springfield journeyed to Amherst to take part in the competition. The winners of the talent hunt were chosen in several categories and although the groups were amateurs they were judged mainly on overall professionalism.

International Fair

For a few days in the spring Memorial Hall was transformed into a bustling bazaar of exotic wares from over the world.

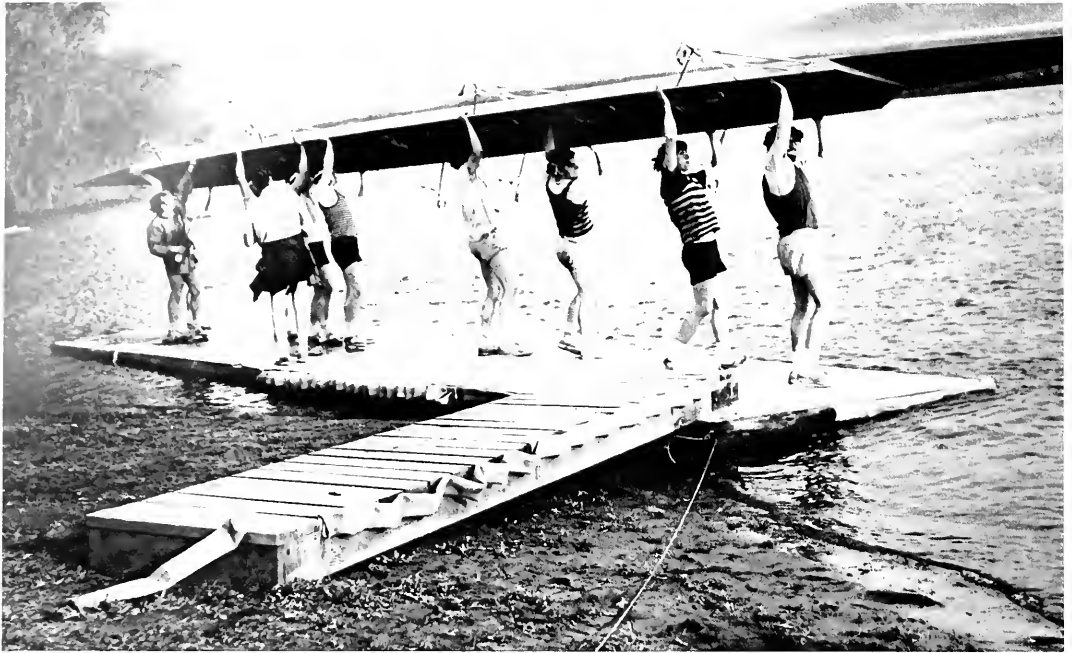

Track

The lack of an on-campus facility at UMass once again created many hardships for the varsity track team. Also, a rash of injuries to the short sprinters midway through the season raised havoc in some of the meet competition. Despite these problems, the Redmen won two of seven meets and finished second in the Yankee Conference Championships.

Only 5 years in existence, the UMass Crew Team, led by Captain Charles Leonard, placed first in the New England College Division by capturing the Rusty Callow Cup. The crewmen then finished fourth in the National College Division in the Dad Vail Championships. With 50% of the crewmen returning the club is looking forward to another successful season.

And Garber's Guerillas continue . . .

The 1970 Lacrosse team added two more games to their 2 year winning streak by beating Middlebury 17-3 and Tufts 14-3 before Harvard defeated them in game number 18 by a score of 12-6. The Snakebeaters returned to their winning ways as they scored 36 goals in the next two games to beat Wesleyan 12-7 and Hartford 24-3. Two Yankee Conference opponents, UConn and UNH fell to the Redmen 14-3 and 19-5. The season closed with the cancellation of the Amherst College game because of the student strike, and another win, this time 18-8 over MIT. The final season tally was seven wins, one loss.

Spring Intramurals

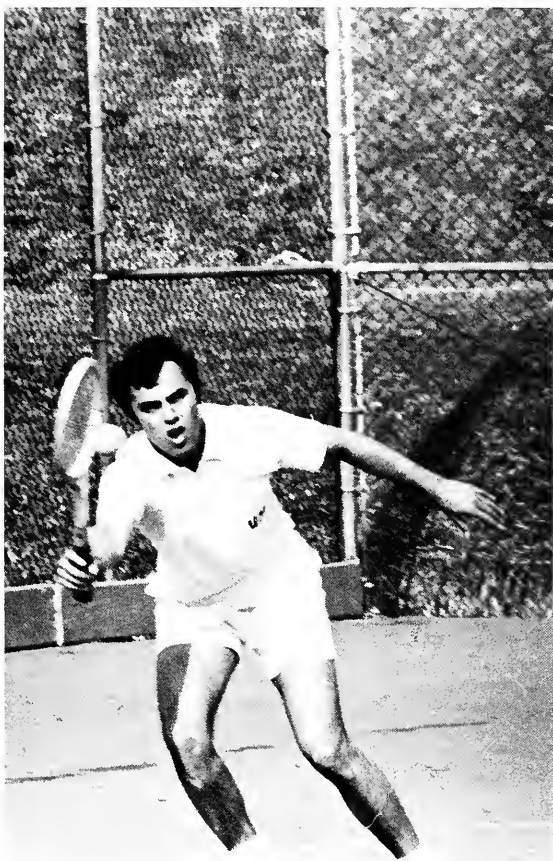

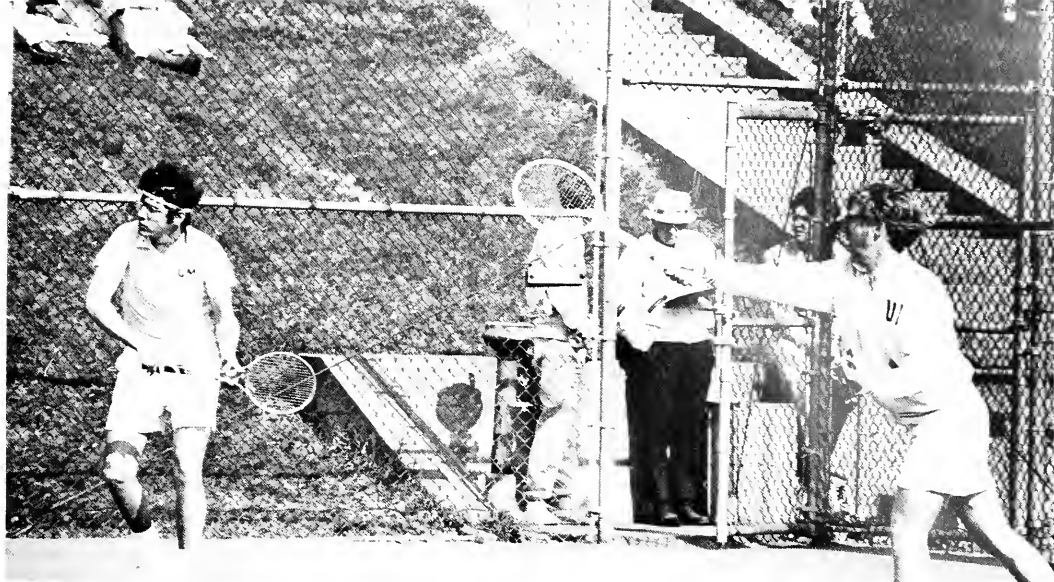

Golf

A well balanced squad was the key to a record of 11 wins and 2 losses, the second best in school history for dual meet competition. The varsity golf team climaxed their year by winning the YanCon Championship held at the Pleasant Valley Country Club in Sutton, Mass. Dick King and Mike Minkas turned in the low scores in the conference tournament; but captain Ed Puzas, Dick Barber, Rick Aherne, and Dave Salter helped in building their fine over-all record under coach Dick Page.

Tennis

The 1970 varsity tennis team, coached by Steve Kozakowski, finished their season with a second place showing in the Yankee Conference. Paced by Mike Katz, the netmen compiled a record of 5 wins and 3 losses in dual meet competition.

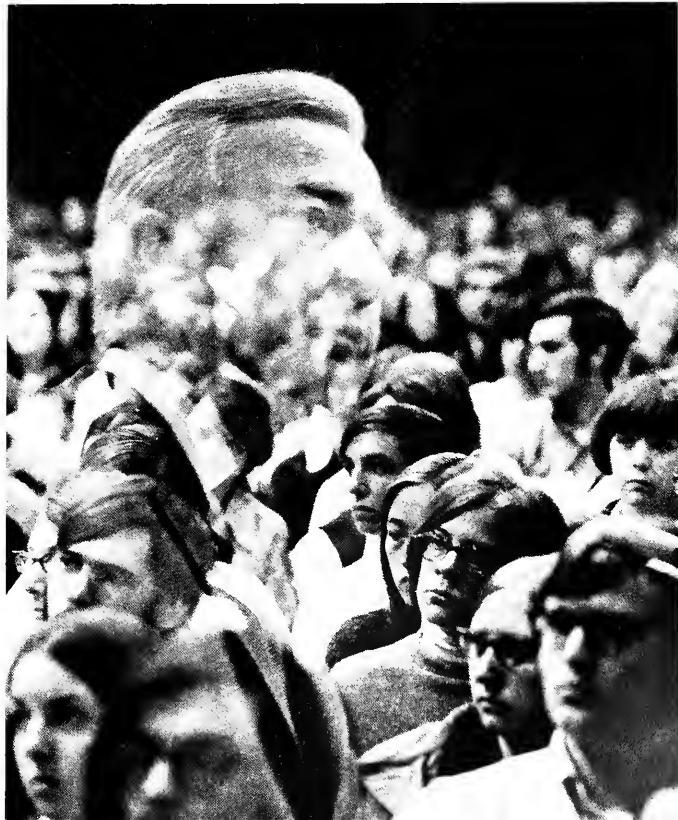

The Distinguished Visitors Program brought an assorted cast of noted personalities to speak to the University community. The lectures spanned both the academic year and a spectrum of topics.

Biafran novelist Chinua Achebe commenced the DVP season, bringing sudden awareness of the plight of his people to the campus. The "Crown Prince of Political Humor", Dick Tuck, enlightened a crowd of listeners on the political adventures that he has fostered. Dick Nixon still bewares of Dick Tuck. Jack Newfield presented the serious side of politics. And, Hubert Humphrey found just how serious the University thought the political situation was. Bramwell Fletcher delighted a Bowker Auditorium audience with a dramatic presentation of Bernard Shaw.

Patrons of the arts were further enthralled by the March Moratorium Poetry Festival, presenting a number of the finest poets in the country. Among the visitors were Robert Bly, Michael Harper, and Senator Eugene McCarthy.

Poetry was followed by foreign policy as former U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer addressed himself to the problem of "Asia in the Seventies."

Social psychologist Kenneth Clark and Civil Rights leader Reverend Ralph David Abernathy shared the platform as the Third Annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Lecture Series speakers. Reverend Abernathy brought particular relevance to his speech as it was he who picked up the torch of leadership of the Southern Leadership Conference from the assassinated Dr. King. Noted Black author Claude Brown supplemented Dr. Abernathy and gave his audience a vivid portrait of the plight of Black people in America. Late in the spring, author Arthur C. Clarke of 2001 A Space Odyssey, speculated on life in the year 2001. A few days later, safety crusader Ralph Nader told his audience of the many ills of today's world. Closing the year were speakers on both sides of the Arab-Israeli conflict, United Nations Arab Ambassador Mohamed El-Zayyat and U.N. Ambassador Moshe Leshem.

To the chant of "guilty, guilty" the "trial" of Hubert H. Humphrey ended as he left the platform, undelivered speech in hand. Forced by several hundred students to answer questions on Chicago, he never got to the main address. After several questions from the floor, during which the demonstrators maintained a cacophony, Mr. Humphrey decided to leave the platform, for the first time in his career. Reaction from both the University community and the general public was strong and polarized.

Many felt he should not have been allowed to speak on campus while others called for a state investigation of the incident. The issue did not die with the end of the school year. A Faculty Senate committee continued work on its report of the incident and DVP pondered future implications of the precedent set that evening.

Sprawled out on the grass beside the pond 2,000 people listened joyfully to Jamie Brockett and his rendition of "The Ballad of the USS Titanic".

Hedge and Donna added to the enjoyment of the afternoon with their perfect harmony. A crowd in the caged grooved to Tim Buckley and a piece entitled "Jungle Bird" with which Buckley got the entire cage moving and singing for the remainder of the concert. Concluding the weekend, James Taylor delighted his Sunday afternoon audience by being his usual, soothing, happy, contented self.

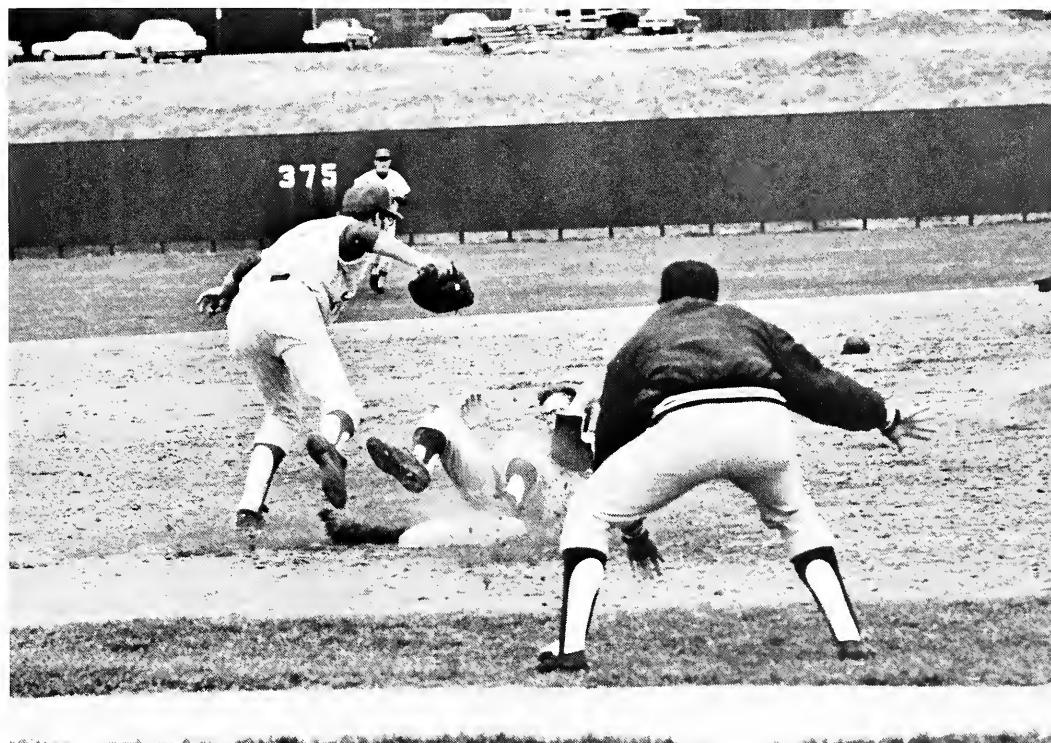

Baseball

Coming off a season which saw a trip to the College World Series, the Redmen posted a mediocre 14-11 record. UMass travelled South to open the season with a win over Richmond. At the University of South Carolina's Spring Tournament the Redmen tied for honors with Princeton, beating the Tigers, Duke, and Toledo, but losing to Yale and Princeton. The home opener was moved to Storrs where the Huskies prevailed 2-0. The Redmen bounced back to clobber B.C. 16-4.

After bowing to Tufts, UMass beat AIC and Vermont twice, giving the Redmen an 8-4 record. Three straight conference games saw the Redmen edged by URI 2-1 and victorious over UNH and UConn. But hopes for a return to last year's winning form were shattered as Dartmouth and Maine twice dealt UMass costly losses. William's felt the frustration of the UMass batters as the Redmen won 15-3, but a 5-3 defeat at the hands of URI put UMass back in its slump. Holy Cross and UNH handed UMass 10-5 and 7-4 losses. Never the less, the Redmen put together a three game winning streak to end the season. BU, Army, and Springfield were the unhappy victims. The Redmen finished with a 4-6 YanCon record and were 14-11 overall.

OHIO?

Sharp, sudden, searing pain. Hot, taking the breath away, gagging. The bullets slammed into their bodies and they were dead.

Who were they? Violent militant revolutionaries? No. When their histories were learned it was not surprising to discover your roommate, your brother, your sister, the friend from high school, your son, your daughter. They were people, part of you.

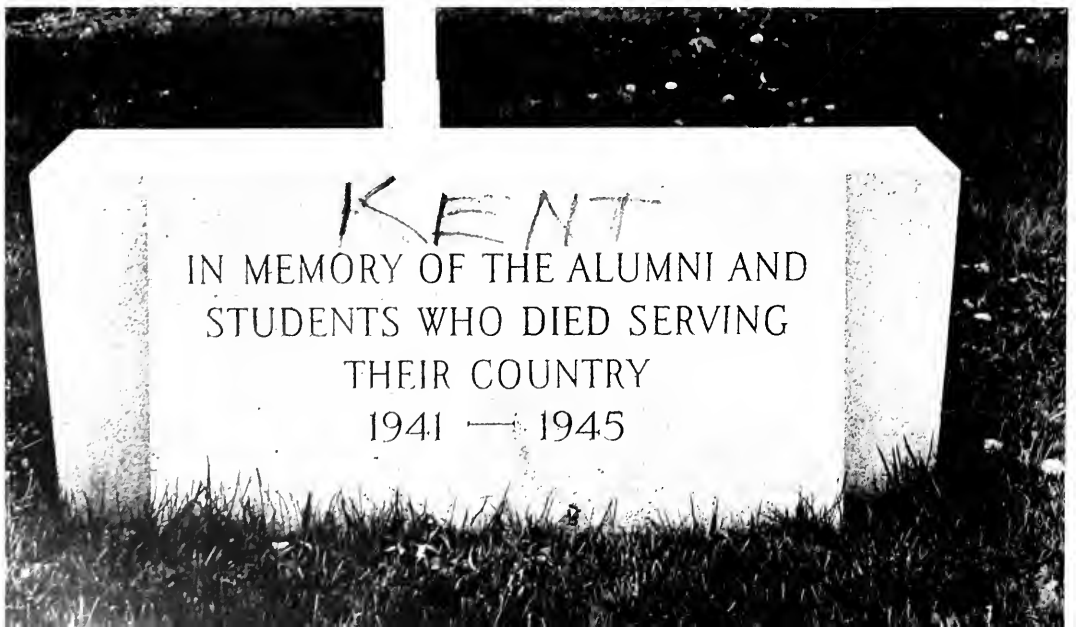

They died in a violent confrontation. They died by the bullet. The way people have been dying in the war for years.

But this was Ohio. Ohio, United States of America and four kids who hated war were killed by the National Guard. The National Guard, made up of guys lucky enough to find a unit and not have to be drafted into the war over there.

Football Happenings . . .

The cheerleaders and the Revelers sparked UMass spirit to urge the Redmen onto their YanCon championship. Grid fans screamed and shouted along with the vocal Revelers, and the Cheerleaders (with their trusty trampoline) added bounce to every game. Bringing the Beanpot back home made it a year for cheer — and everyone did.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

New England's largest college daily newspaper showed a new face during 1970. Sports Editor turned Editor-in-Chief Peter Pascerilli presented the Daily Collegian with a true tabloid pictorial front page. The innovation of the new format brought about renewed interest in the entire paper and especially controversial editorial and Campus Comment pages.

The issue of freedom of the press raged as an editorial offensive to President Nixon was printed without censorship. Often confusing, the editorial page provided a safety valve for student frustrations.

Peanuts, The Wizard of Id, B.C., and the crossword puzzle were joined by a horoscope to provide more in class reading, while there were still classes. The in class reading became out of class reading when the Daily Collegian carried the headline "STRIKE". Managing Editor Mark Silverman, News Editor Claudia Hamberg, and Photo Editor Pat Lempart teamed to provide full strike coverage to the campus.

Metawampe's Sports Department Chief John Sullivan provided the MDC with solid sports coverage. As long as the patron spirit Metawampe guards and guides the staff of the Daily Collegian, it prospers.

WMUA: The radio plays the music

Under the direction of station manager Ken Horseman, WMUA provided diverse coverage on all aspects of life at UMass.

A complete day was set aside for covering the Moratorium and its effects at the University. For UMass sport fans, the plays were called live by Hal Dash and Ken Horseman.

Although the trustees couldn't find enough watts for WMUA to go stereo, this year the music was still a mixed bag: rock, mood, or soul. In the fall of 1970, both Channels of "the music" will be heard, as plans for installation of new equipment continue under the guidance of chief engineer, Jay Ballard.

The News Department reached its "apex of professionalism", in the words of News Director Richard Lipton. Highlights of news coverage included the Mills House affair, the Humphrey incident, the march on Whitmore, the April 10-11 "Come Together" activities, and Strike Activities.

Engineering Journal

Designed to be a technical journal for the physical science and engineering majors, the Journal also enjoyed some engineer's fun with the joke page and the engineer's girl page.

APO & GSS

Again this year Alpha Phi Omega and Gamma Sigma Sigma, men's and women's service fraternities, combined to run the always successful book exchange in the Student Union. Through the year both organizations provided community service by sponsoring and assisting in programs such as the Amherst Fair, visiting the Belchertown School, and sponsoring Christmas parties for orphans.

ARCON

A visitor to this campus could easily become lost without the help of an ARCON guided tour. Composed of selected members of fraternities, ARCON offers guided tours of the campus and is responsible for making favorable impressions on thousands of visitors to UMass each year.

Scrolls

By accenting participation within the University Community, the Scrolls contributed their services all over campus. Some of their activities were helping with freshman orientation, ushering, and sponsoring a Christmas party for ghetto children.

International Club

Like our local country fairs, the International Fair, sponsored by the International Club, presented displays of the various clothing, foods, and wares of the foreign countries represented by students at the University. By sponsoring coffee hours, picnics, and lectures the club offers students an opportunity to better understand some of the traditions and customs of other countries.

Senate President Cindy Olken and Secretary Pat Beharry

Student Senate

The kingdom of the Student Senate, the power of the student senate, and the Glory of the Student Senator. Amen.

The Student Senate is the governing body of the undergraduates, dealing out nearly $500,000 of student tax funds annually. Ninety or so students supposedly with the power to make law. Each senator elected by and representing a constituency.

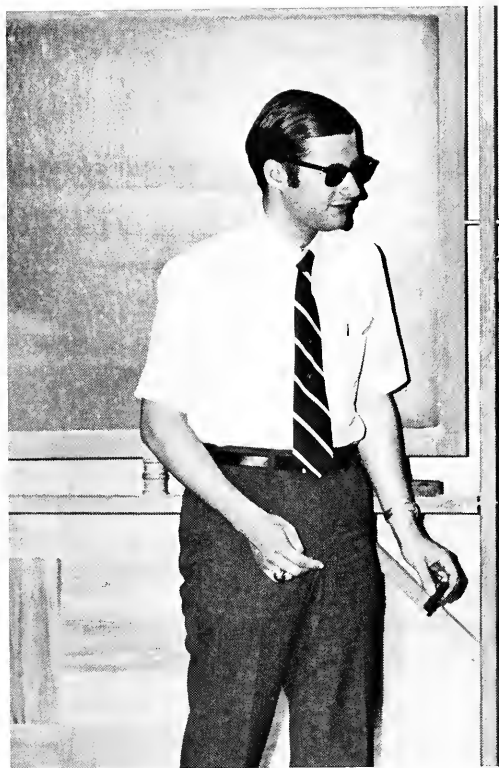

This is the way it has been for years. What was different during the 1969-70 year was the drama. When the year started with the resignation of the Student Senate President, it was a good indication of how turbulent the year was going to be.

The early semester referendum on Student Activities Tax funding a trip to the November 15 Peace Moratorium in Washington, D. C. shocked many students into the realization of the Senate's power of the purse. Students turned out in force to narrowly vote down the Senate passed money. So, the Senate went back to its usual ways of debate and discussion.

Suddenly Senate President Bruce Balboni decided that he had enough University frustration; he resigned his post and left school. Vice President Cindy Olken took the reigns as President and hit the headlines as the first student trustee in University history. Glenn Elters came on to win the election to the void Vice-Presidents post.

Senate action rolled on. The idea of an administration imposed room rent hike stirred the Senate to strong reaction. Under Senate pressure they compromised and the rate hike proposal was changed. As the year came toward a close, the time consuming activity continued through long Wednesday night meetings — as long as a quorum could be held. The Senate worked diligently on its usual budgetary and petty lawmaking activity. Came the Strike and quick Senate support.

Lately, the Student Senate conducted a poll about the Yahoo. Never wishing to be outdone by the Senate, and also not wishing to use up the student's money by printing up thousands of polls, the Yahoo presents a poll, similarly unrepresentative and biased, of its own:

1. Have you ever been to a Senate meeting? Yes..... No.....
2. Do you find it entertaining? Yes..... Hell, No.....
3. Can you name your representative to the Student Senate?
Yes..... No.....
4. Can you name the officers of the Student Senate? Yes.....
No.....
5. On what day does the Student Senate meet? Mon.....
Tues..... Wed..... Thurs..... Fri.....
6. You don't condone the continuation of supporting the Student Senate with $11,992.50 of student tax funds per year? Do you?..... No!.....
7. Would you attend a Senate meeting if they charged 25¢ a meeting? Yes.....No.....
8. Would you be opposed to allowing the Student Senate to continue in its evil ways? Yes..... No.....
9. Would you like to see the campus pond, its ducks, the Senate, and proposed benches abolished? Yes..... No.....
10. Would you be not opposed to the abolishment of not having a discontinuation of all now-existing oppositions against anti-nullifying opposing? Yes..... No.....
If no, why?

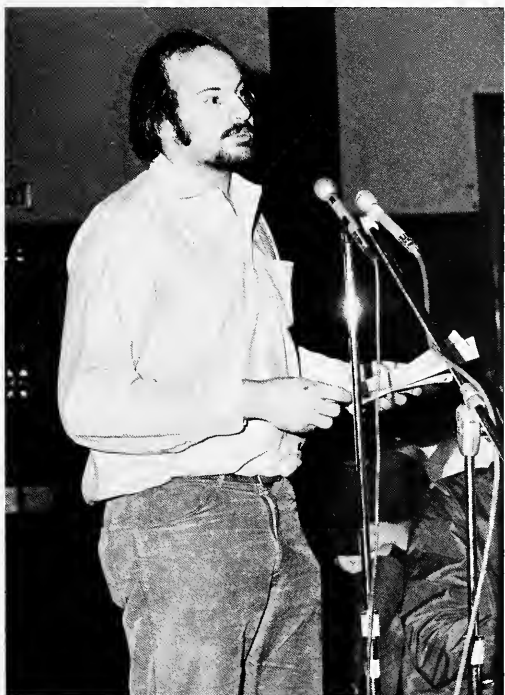

—Spring 1965

Most Student Senators spent much time and effort in Senate activity. At the same time, much has been said against the Student Senate and its often "power-hungry" ways, even though there were a lot of people who tried to make it decent. Not everyone added to the verbal pollution often accompanying Senate meetings. Many Senators were sincere and an asset to the campus, yet they were not as noticeable, or as menacing, as the others.

With luck, the Student Senate will never again meet, and in 1971 the University will have a joint faculty and student governing body.

Writers Theatre

The Writers theatre was set up this year by the Student Union Program Council to sponsor student written, directed, and performed works. NJG, written by Naomi Berkowitz, was chosen this year from among many outstanding manuscripts to be performed in the Student Union. The play was performed in the round, with characters sitting, entering, and exiting from the audience.

Operetta Guild

Run by members of the University Community, the Operetta Guild is an extra-curricular activity. This year two plays were presented, Guys and Dolls, and The Roar of the Greasepaint, the Smell of the Crowd.

Student Leaders
Night

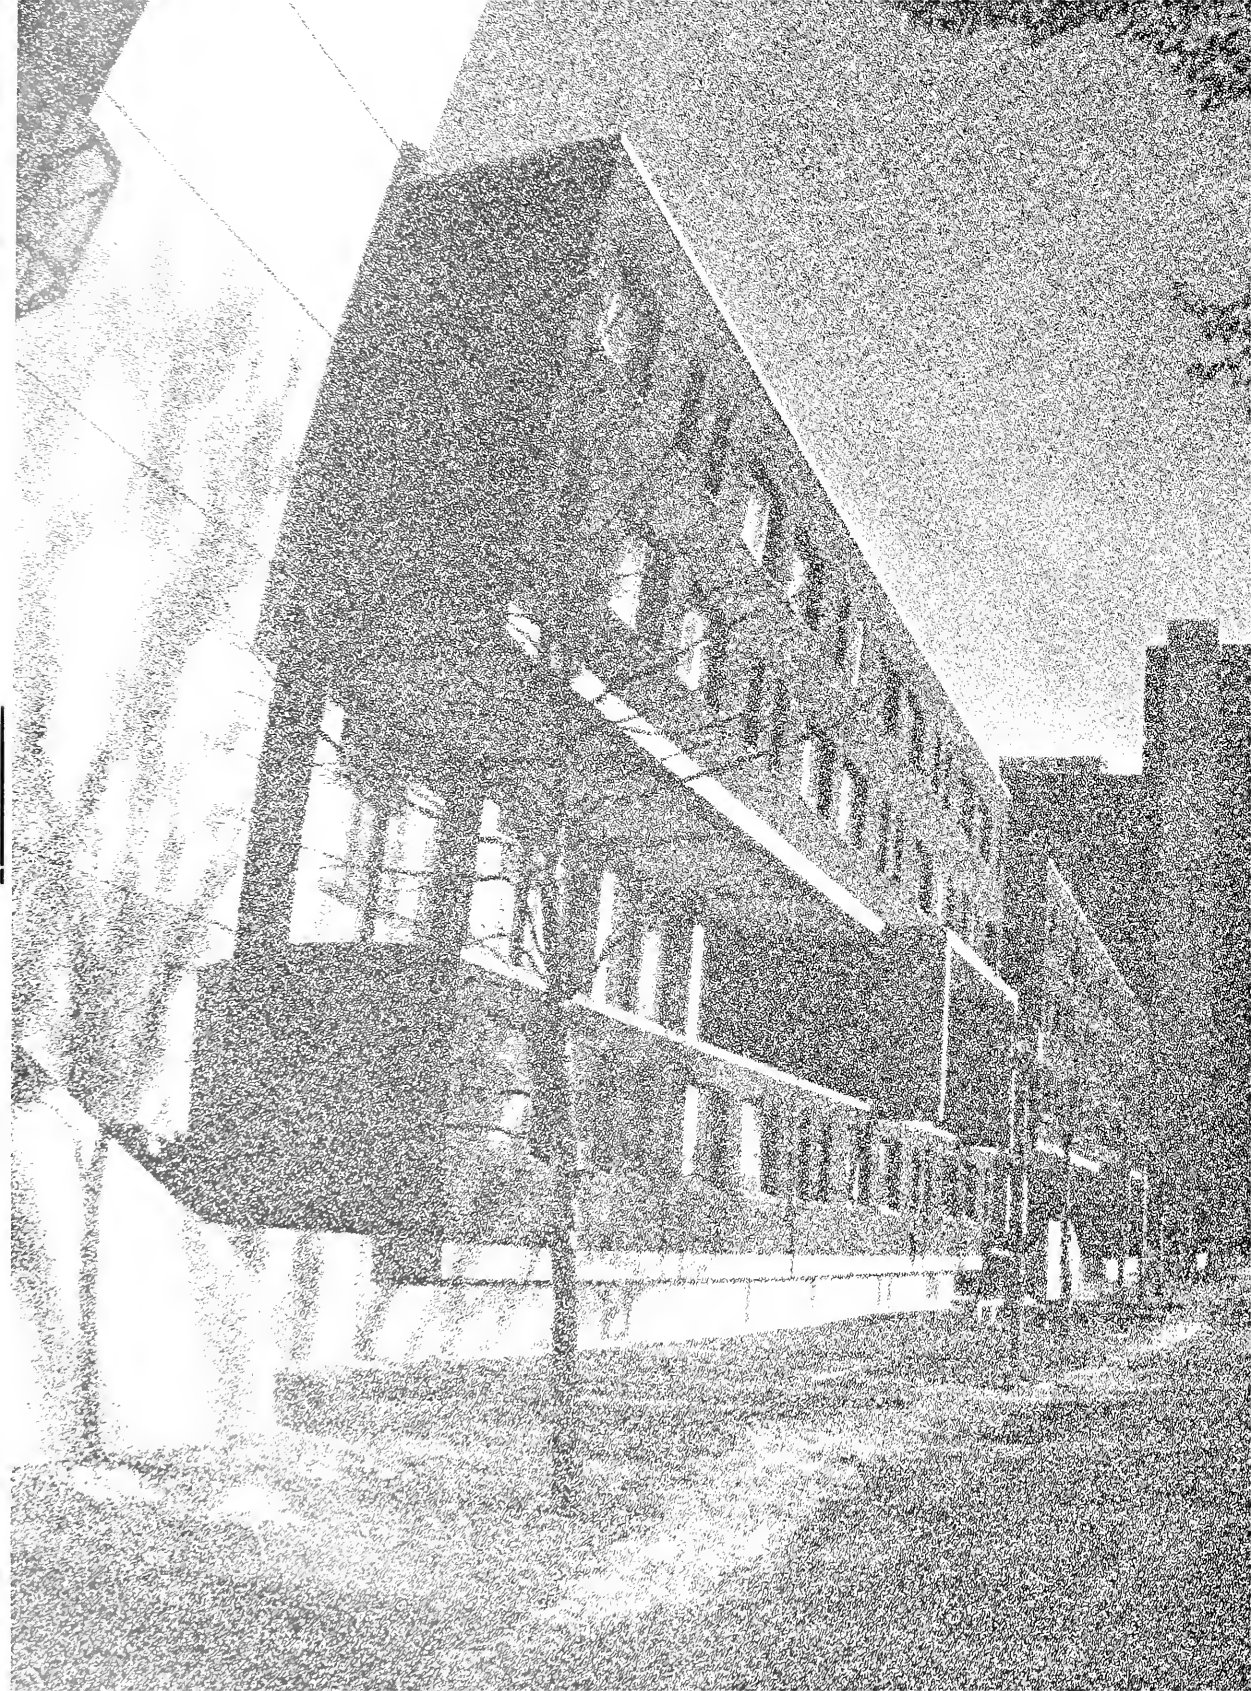

Originally designed to be a night where people were honored for displaying leadership among students in a particular activity, Student Leaders Night this year turned into a rank-out session, with the leaders of many of the campus activities using the speaker's platform to politic, explaining how their organization had disappointed them. But, many people on this campus did make significant contributions to the UMass scene, and these should be acknowledged.

student living

The Quad

As the year went along, residents realized more and more why they wanted to live here.

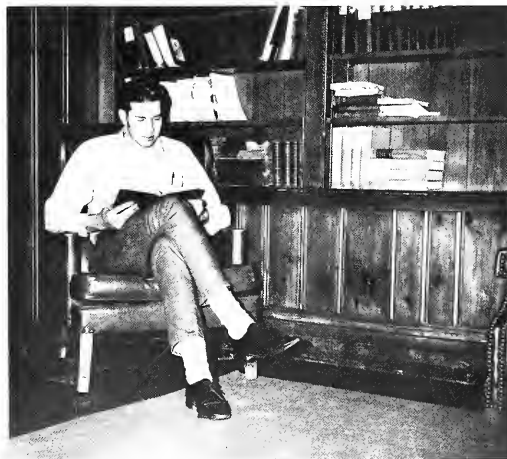

Although conditions were not always good,

Some improvements were being made.

A lazy, peaceful atmosphere hangs over the area. In the spring, girls in their bikinis dot the lawn to soak up the sun. It's the oldest living area on campus without many of the facilities of the newer. But, the people are close. The "New Northeast" is the old Quad with a vitality and life from within. Everyone cares for one another: a counseling and drug drop-in center in Hamlin, a springtime Quad fair. A handful of males, occupying only two of nine Northeast dorms, spy on the female population — and life goes on.

And they had a good time doing it.

Southwest

From huge towers to minute problems;
those only a city could have.

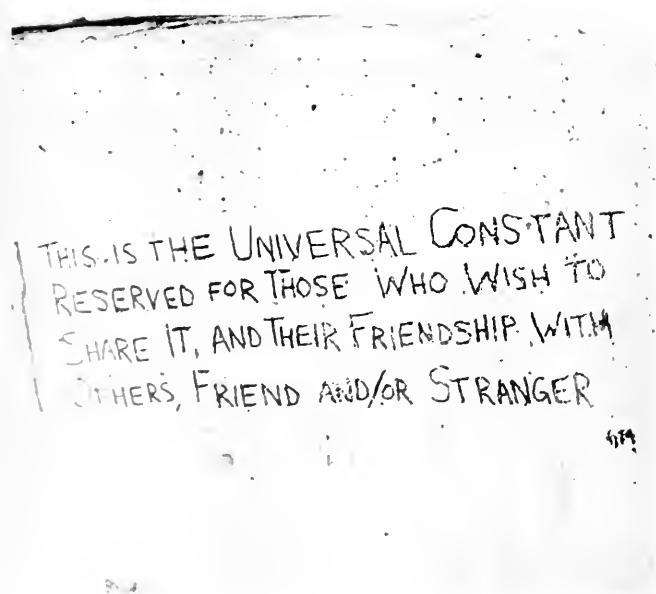

Living
crowded, closely together

in an atmosphere of friendliness
and sensitivity.

Dorm
Living
In Southwest

Project 10 . . .
A living experiment
and experience.

Through the magic tunnel and into the maze of people and cement. Buildings tower above you and the blare of acid rock pierces your ears.

Urban living in the placid farmlands of Western Mass. Study and play side by side in the close confines of Southwest complex. People living together in harmony and discord — noise and solitude. Together they move, on a 24 hour schedule, as Southwest never sleeps. The pulse of the complex kept beating constantly by the random activity of those who travel the tunnel and the maze.

Was the walk worth it?

We thought so . . .

From the trees around the steep dirt path and over the hilly terrain to the Orchard. Four identical buildings with the familiar repetitious grid of windows overlooking the entire campus.

Orchard hill lives in isolation from the rest of the campus and the world; a quiet solitude broken only by the student activity. But, there is a restive calm over the area aside the apple trees, a closeness to the rural setting in which UMass lies. Trek through the mud or slide on the ice to get there; ten minutes to the commons; by the infirmary; "The Hill".

Central Area

Central Area hasn't changed all that much over the years. Perhaps the ghost of tradition stalks the corridors and guards the old grassy knoll. You feel like you are in college. The old traditional college atmosphere is broken in only a few places, with Greenough girls and guys and the sudden Brook-Mill coed conversion, Old Central led the way in the new living experience. From the center of campus, Central blends into Morrill the Newman Center and the Hill.

Black Cultural Center

FROM OUR SIDE

Help By Understanding

The Black Cultural Center, the Black Studies Program and most academic and social reforms that the Blacks at UMass have been working for have suffered from too much rhetoric by all members of the university community. Far too many individuals and groups have been wasting their time in evaluating the reforms proposed Black students. Far too many people, as witnessed by the Kappa Sigma-Mills House incident, have been reactionary and an actual hindrance to all efforts toward equality in this university.

It is time for the arguments to stop, and the reactions to subside. The Black Cultural Center and the Black Studies Program are vital to the Black community. Indeed, most specific proposals by the Black community have their worth. It is time to stop considering, and time to act. The Blacks on this campus, we believe, know what they want and know how to go about getting it. It is their "thing", they should do it. But they will have a much harder time of it if students, faculty and administrators flounder, day after day, in their own words of indecision and debate.

It is time for a lot of understanding and cooperation. Immediately plans for the implementation of the Black Cultural Center and the Black Studies Program should begin. In short, if you cannot help, or at least cooperate, do not hinder. Try to understand, but if you cannot, don't get in the way.

Greeks

Individual needs, yet concern for others — the Greek lifestyle — brothers and sisters participating in the college community.

Living in a house was eventful,
always something happening,
something to be a part of.

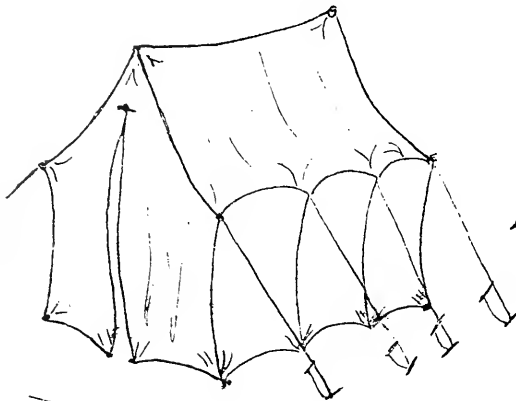

The things that enabled a person to grow were more easily shared with a friend.

The Greeks changed with the times; a few houses were moved to different places, others were completely gone, and still others remained the same.

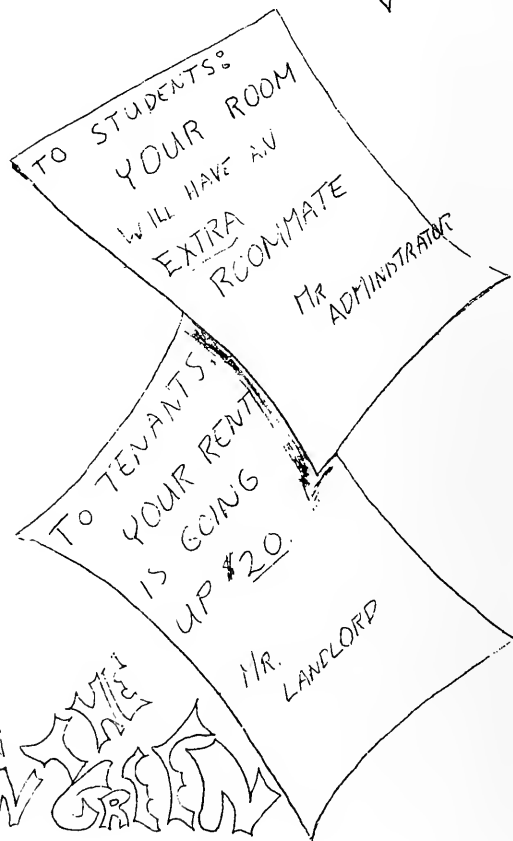

To Mr. Landlord and Mr. Administrator:

We, your tenants, will no longer live in your congested rooms. We will no longer pay your exploitive prices. We will no longer live in unlivable apartments.

You have forced us out of rooms; you have forced us out of homes, but we will not leave the town. We work in Amherst; we study in Amherst; this is our town, we are going to stay here.

We want an end to the high rents. Non-profit housing is possible, that is what we want. The time for talking is near an end. We want action; we want housing at a price we can pay.

PEOPLE OF TENT CITY

SAT. 9:30

ON THE GREEN

Commuters

To the many students who lived in a dorm for three years, moving off campus brought visions of freedom. Off campus he would be free of dorm living restrictions, he would be able to throw parties, have pets, eat what he wanted when he wanted, and not have to share his living room and bathroom with twenty other guys (and girls). But he soon found that many of the old dorm problems followed him off campus. As a commuter, he joined the other local residents in facing these problems. Late in August, tempers flared as the year-round residents held mass meetings at Amherst Commons and confronted Amherst town administrators with complaints of high rents and substandard conditions.

In moving off campus he found new chores and duties awaiting him. Furniture was often complements of the midnight movers from the town dump, vacuum cleaners were hard to come by, and old houses always had many bare looking walls. Every night the sink was full of dirty dishes waiting to be washed, and sometimes the bathtub had a baby waiting to be dried.

As the University kept on growing past the fifteen thousand student mark and on its way to thirty, so did the surrounding communities. Tobacco fields were turned into apartment complexes overnight, as prefabricated units were assembled off a truck. Other apartment complexes used more standard units, sometimes fitting over hundred apartments into a few acres. Some offered dishwashers and swimming pools, others air conditioning. Real estate agencies called it modern living and this year, as always, students snapped up leases to these apartment complexes, so that by mid-summer not one unit was left unleased.

All commuters faced the same problems, getting to campus in the morning and what to do between classes. Those who drove found that M and N lots were a long way from campus. Unless you can early the only open spaces were on the grass or in a mud puddle. The hatch became a second home for eating lunch, playing cards, or reading the paper. At 5 o'clock it was traffic jam time, with all of the parking lots emptying into the narrow country streets.

Editorial

One hundred and one years ago, in compiling the first volume of the Index, the tradition of an editorial comment from the editors was initiated. In past years it has taken many forms, both active and pensive, reflecting the moods and feelings of the campus. This year we have found that an editorial dated ninety-five years ago has again become especially fitting and timely.

Fellow Students:

In submitting to you this volume of the Index, we have to offer a congratulation upon being able to look back on a year full of prosperity, and replete with facts which, as bearing on the future of our institution are significant.

We allude to the growing popularity of our college and the rank it has taken among institutions of learning. From the year of its foundation the college has had to encounter oppositions of every sort and magnitude; and worse than all others, that know nothing opposition that opposes simply because it does not know. We are slowly but surely living down all this unfriendliness; and, fellow-student, don't leave all this work of conversion to the man at the wheel. Although the ship is in good hands, yet we, as students, in our peculiar relations with one another and with the public, act an important part in giving character and place to the university,

Although we now would word this a bit differently, the basic ideas and concepts expressed in this editorial are still with us. We have this year, perhaps more than any other, realized that the students are the University and the University can be no more than its students.

This student-university relationship is influenced by two separate factors. The people who live, work, and study at the University, and the University proper, that which physically exists, independent of the University. The culmination of these two is the University Community, and this is the theme of our communication.

The class of 1875 wrote of a college community consisting of but 88 students . . .

and a staff of 10 professors—any remembered now only as names on buildings.

Now their first names have been forgotten and the buildings erected to memorialize them . . .

... Have become part of the great concrete university metropolis.

A city in the hills.

... Where buildings of concrete replace the older brick.

The glare of the hot sun shining down . . .

Over the once virgin land,

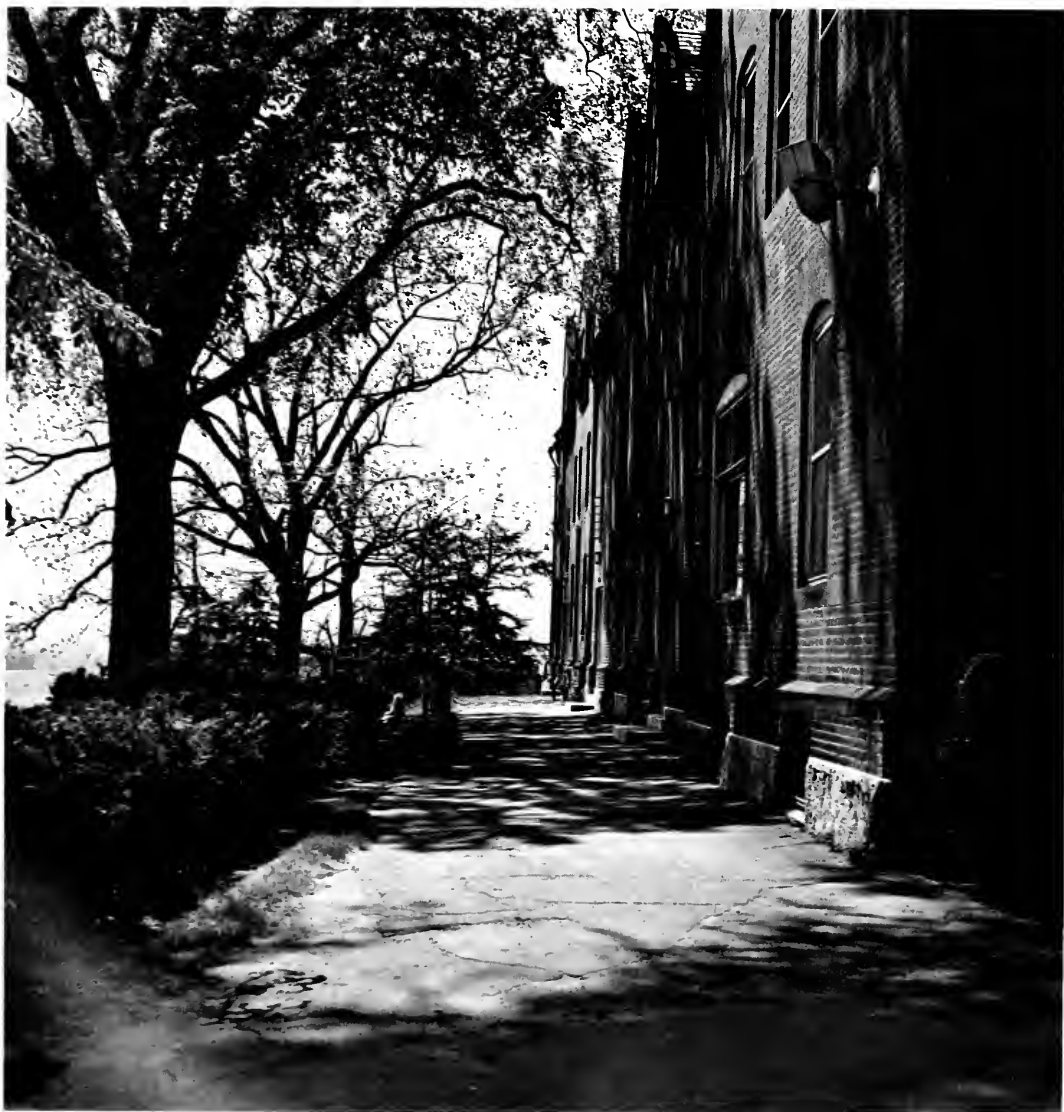

Warming the walls and the water . . .

... Of a once country college.

Myriad facets of dorm windows . . .

Interlaced with brick . . . and an occasional person

While trees still remain for shade,

... Growing one on another, buildings sprout from everywhere.

While the frail foliage slowly, reluctantly, retreats

From the ever growing ranks of man made habitats.

The campus extends on . . .

Concrete, brick, glass, and steel-permanently interwoven

Each silent stone reflecting the other endlessly.

Life infused into the buildings erected by man for man . . .

... Where education is part of being ...

... and the concrete and asphalt serves as mans backdrop for learning.

A place where man can think . . .

... Where the greatest resource is man himself ...

... Which no carpenter can build, no scientist can simulate,

and no machine can replace.

Individuals so complex and unique . . .

. . . that even the greatest philosopher cannot comprehend . .

. . . the functions of even one . . .

. . . himself.

But interacting with others...

... and gaining the wisdom of others brings fulfillment.

Out of this comes a slow awareness that the culmination of both academic and social learning in harmony with each other is the University Community.

seniors

It was a perfect day for graduation — hot enough to make the gowns of acetate irritate. Even the flowers surrounding Alumni Stadium smiled in the background of the many Instamatic pictures taken of seniors with sun-lit expressions saying: “This is the day, I finally made it through the books, the classes, the long hours of sleep when I was supposed to be in class, the mud, the administrative red tape, the endless lines, and the endless dining commons hot dogs and hamburgs.” May 30th though, was all but a perfect day, for all was but perfect in the world which some 2,800 seniors were about to face.

Unlike traditional graduations, the 100th commencement aroused controversy, even before it began. The publicity, in part, may have simply provoked by a graduation gap in the press with last minute commencement cancellations at colleges in Massachusetts and elsewhere. With the Student Strike still fresh in everyones mind, a Commencement Task Force, comprised of seniors and administrators, voted to alter the exercises by not playing the national anthem, substituting the traditional processional music for a French drum roll and the recessional for a chorus of “We Shall Overcome”, the wearing of peace arm bands and the stenciling of red-fist strike symbols on the back of gowns. It was the fourth demand to lower the flag to half-mast which met with a ripple of emotional response from the State house to lower the University budget for next year. Fortunately, it was memorial day, and the flag was to be flown at half-mast anyway.

It's 10:30 a.m. and having sobered up from Senior Day you stand at the south side of the stadium contemplating your last line at UMass . . . and it's just as long and confusing as the first one four years ago. Saying some last good-byes your eyes move quickly from tassel to tassel and your mind tingles with nostalgia and trembles with speculation of "all the rights and privileges" that a degree will confer upon you. And for the moment, familiar faces and phantom faces have doffed their denims and sandals to converge in the annual cap and gown milieu . . . graduation.

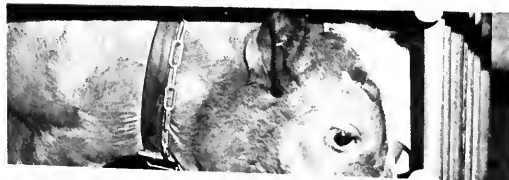

Filing into the wind-swept stadium, the graduates, clutching their caps to their heads, passed a giant peace placard on the goal line. The anthem was played, and while it was, a group of graduates marched onto the field holding silent written reminders of the past month: "Kent 4", "Augusta 6", "Jackson 2"

This commencement, unlike others, was not without its historic moment. After having contributed to ten years of unprecedented University growth . . . a decade marked by redefinition of student academic freedom and University reform right from the first sit-ins of the 60's to the first student strike of the 70's, John William Lederle delivered his final address as president of the University. But, to the class of '70, Whitmore Administration building will always be fondly remembered as "Fort Lederle" . . . a symbol of campus growth . . . and president Lederle as "The Phantom" . . . a symbol of University leadership. Lederle's speech was momentarily interrupted by a throng of parental applause as two seniors marched onto Alumni Field holding high two miniature American Flags. And so it went accordingly throughout the ceremony . . . any words bespeaking of patriotism drew immediate audience approval. Any words warning of social injustice or immorality of the war drew response from the students. Back and forth . . . from one speaker to the next . . . the Generation Gap in stereo.

Following the invocation and a few words by Governor Sargent, Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Seymour Shapiro rendered an incisive account of campus activity during the student strike. But the tone of objectivity by Dean Shapiro was quickly cast aside by senior class president David Veale, who confronted the parents with the predominant feelings of his classmates: "We are frustrated because we have tried so hard to change the evils in America and in the end we have accomplished nothing". Veale, who's words apparently captured the mood of many students across the country, was quoted in both LIFE and TIME magazines. President of Yale University, Kingman Brewster touched on the source of student frustration when he urged the reordering of the nations priorities: "Whether the avoidance of the appearance of defeat in Vietnam is more important than the reality of economic and social opportunity at home deserves debate." The principal speaker called for an end to U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia and a rechanneling of war funds into domestic programs.

Senior Day

Having just finished finals for the final time, the grass on the North Quad never looked greener, the beer never tasted better, and the familiar faces never seemed friendlier. Senior Day was an all-day, all-night blast filled with reminiscing of four years gone past.

"Some day, my lord, some day you will conquer that windmill."

When Sancho spoke these words to Don Quixote, he did not expect that the windmill would ever be defeated. Neither can we as students expect to conquer our windmill, but maybe someday one of us will find a way to make it our friend, and we will have a little bit more peace in our world.
